the Old Colony Trust Company erected at No. 52 Temple Place, midway between Tremont and Washington Streets, a four-story fire-proof building, which is entirely devoted to the uses of the Company.

The basement contains the safe deposit vaults; on the ground floor is the banking room; the second floor rooms, furnished with desks, stationery, magazines, telephones, etc., are reserved for women; while the committee rooms on the fourth floor are at the disposal of depositors and renters of safe deposit boxes. This branch office was established both for the use of business men in the neighborhood and to provide banking facilities for women in the shopping district.

Residents of towns surrounding Boston have found this office very useful. Signature cards are kept in duplicate, one at the main office in the Ames Building, and the other at the Temple Place office, so that deposits can be made and checks cashed at either office.

A pamphlet illustrating and describing the Temple Place office will be sent upon application.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Short Meeting of the Board on Monday Night.

Land in West Newton Sold for Manufacturing Purposes.

The regular meeting of the board of aldermen was held Monday night, President Saltonstall in the chair at 7:45 p. m.

Present: Aldermen Baker, Bishop, Bosson, Brown, Cabot, Carter, Denison, Doherty, Ellis, Ensign, Hunt, Palmer, Stone, Underwood, Webster, Weston and White.

A communication from Mayor Weed transmitting an invitation from Charles Ward Post 62 to participate in exercises of Memorial Day was received and the invitation accepted.

The proclamation of Governor William L. Douglas, appointing April 29th as Arbor Day was placed on file.

A communication from The State Board of Statistics and Labor notifying the board of the appointment of J. Holman Pryor, Reuben Forknall, Benj. S. Seward, Leighton W. Whitney, Ellen E. Wright, Abbie M. Rand, Gertrude M. Bourne, J. Edw. Healy, Fred W. Clark, Alex H. Dreser, Ida M. Blaisdell, Ezra E. Smith and Alfred L. Barbour as Census Enumerators, was received.

A notice from the Board of Railroad Commissioners relative to hearing on April 25 upon certain street railway matters was received, the City Clerk stating that due notice had been given the individual aldermen in the matter.

A venire for two traverse jurors for the Superior Court at East Cambridge on May 15 was filed by Alderman Ensign drawing the names of John E. Crowle of Gardner st and Edmund H. Tarbell of Lincoln st.

A request of the School Committee for $500 to meet expense of special instruction of backward children was referred to the Finance Committee.

HEARINGS.

Hearings were severally announced upon these matters:

N. and W. Gas Light Co for attachments to poles of Newton St. Rwy. Co on Commonwealth ave from Boston line to Chestnut st.

N. and W. Gas Light Co for one pole location Centre Place.

Taking land for sewer in Foster St. Ward 2.

Taking land for sewer in Mague Ave., Ward 3.

Taking land for sewer in Mague Pl. Ward 3.

No one appeared and each hearing was declared closed.

At a hearing on petition of the N. E. Tel. and Tel. Co for location of 4 poles on Crafts st, Mr. J. B. Robson spoke in remonstrance saying that the poles were evidently asked for to reach his house with a telephone but as he had been supplied from another direction he objected to the poles.

The hearing was closed.

PETITIONS.

Petitions of Dr. J. J. Coxeter to move a building from Adams st to West st and of Martin Quinlan to move a building from Ruthven road to private way off Clinton st were granted without reference.

Petitions for reconsideration of Boylston st betterments from Arthur Muldoon, Margaret J. Kerivan and Thos. Belger were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Petitions of R. C. Bridgman for sewer in Dale st, of D. J. Corcoran for sewer in Moulton st, and proposition of Geo J. Martin of $6000 for land owned by city corner of Washington and Felton sts were referred to the Committee on Public Works.

Petitions of Edw. Katzman for junk license, Jas. W. Martin for carriage, F. T. Ward for 2 alleys and 2 pool tables, Frank Graham for D wagon and 1 carriage, and Mary E. Hosmer, Ellen A. Kelley, Josephine E. Carlisle and Gertrude D. Knapp for intelligence office licenses were referred to the Committee on Public Franchises etc.

Petitions of Daniel H. Fitzgerald and Abram Schreier for junk, and J. R. Robertson and Gray and Frost for Common Vitallier licenses were granted without reference.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

These reports were received: Public Works, Recommending change of name of Deerfield road to Old Orchard road; recommending $1066 for certain water mains; recommending sewer construction in Crafts, Lothrop, Jenison and Summer sts and recommending taking land for sewer in Newell road.

Public Franchises, etc, recommending granting attachments to N. E. Tel. and Tel. Co, on Elm st ward 3.

A report of the Committee on Public Franchises recommending granting license to Walter E. Mars and P. J. E. Lacroix for 6th Class Liquor, and 1 carriage license to John Flood was accepted, the license fee in the Flood case being remitted.

A recess was then taken until 8:42 p. m. for committee meetings and upon reassembling, these committee reports were received.

Public Works: favorable to acceptance of offer of Geo J. Martin of $6000 for land on Washington st and recommending sewer construction on Webster st.

Finance, approving certain recommendations of Committee on Public Works.

The adverse report of the Committee on Public Franchises on petition for carriage license of J. H. Carpenter was taken from the table, and a substitute motion to grant the license adopted.

These orders were then adopted:

Assigning hearing May 15 on taking land for sewer in Newell road; granting N. E. Tel. and Tel. Co attachments on Elm st; changing name of Deerfield road to Old Orchard Road, and authorizing sale of 40,000 feet of land on Washington and Felton sts to Geo. J. Martin for $6000 and an agreement to erect a brick building for manufacturing purposes to cost not less than $12000 within six months.

In response for information regarding the last order Alderman Hunt stated that while the amount offered was not all the land was worth, the recommendation of the committee was in the line of encouraging manufacturing within the city.

Also orders taking land for sewer purposes in Foster st., Mague ave and Mague pl, and for sewer construction in Crafts st, Lothrop st, Jenison st, Summer st, Webster st, Mague ave, Mague Place, for perambulation of lines between Watertown and Newton and between Brookline and Newton and for laying water mains in Allen ter., $376, Dale st., $195, Elliot ave. $150., Farwell and North sts., $450., Lowell av., $100., Moffatt road, $180, and Saxon road, $215.

A motion to take the order relating to free transfers from the table and to adopt the same was opposed by Alderman Ensign who said that the tabling was for the purpose of printing the orders and as that had not been done he wished the matter again postponed. Alderman Cabot also spoke in opposition and the motions to take from the table and to adopt were then withdrawn.

And at 9:07 p. m. the board adjourned.

LETTER TO CHAS. F. JONES,

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

Dear Sir: Here's something every painter and builder ought to know. Mr J J Hall, Sheffield, Pa, painted two houses, 5 years ago, lead-and-oil; took 40 gallons.

Last year, he painted Devco; bought 40 gallons; had 10 left.

He is one of thousands. The knowledge is getting about pretty generally, that Devco goes further than anything else.

Have you found it out in your own experience?

How much further? Suppose a job amounts to 10,000 square feet; how much less Devco could you buy?

Is it as easy to paint? Does it cost any more or less to put-on by the gallon than anything else? how much?

If it costs no more to put-on Devco by the gallon, it costs less by the foot, you know, for the gallon does more feet. How much less, do you find it, for wages?

Lasts, say, twice as long; that is the owner's gain; but perhaps you reckon it yours; some do. The time, when that comes-in, is when he gives-out the next job.

Who gets it?

Yours truly

F W Devco & Co

May Festival.

Mrs. William S. Butler's 17th annual May Festival, will take place at Mechanics Building on Saturday afternoon and evening May 6th. For a number of weeks the 500 children and young people have been rehearsing under the direction of Mrs. Lila Viles Wyman, who has prepared a program of novel and poetic dances, far superior to any ever given at any previous Festival. Some of them she saw when abroad last summer, and has adapted them to the children. The Festival will be under the direct supervision of Mrs. Butler, and Mrs. Wyman will direct the dances. The costumes will all be made specially for the occasion, and have been designed with an idea of obtaining the most picturesque effects.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Park Theatre—Should the Indian marry the girl? This question is everywhere debated in Boston. One hears it in the clubs the restaurants, the drawing rooms, on the street cars, in fact, wherever people congregate. It has been inspired by the great college play "Strongheart" in which Robert Edson is now appearing at the Park Theatre. Rarely has a play started as great a discussion among Boston theatregoers. Since the first week of its tenancy at the Park Theatre where it is now in its seventh week with an undiminished record of large attendance, "Strongheart" has been the most talked-of play in town. The novelty of its second act showing the training quarters of the Columbia eleven between the halves of the season's biggest game furnishes in itself enough sensation for continual comment. The glimpse it affords of what might be termed life behind the scenes of a foot ball contest, with its thrillingly effective description by Mr. Edson of the progress of the game, and is rousing climax with the victorious team half crazed by joy over victory, is certain to remain long in the minds of the spectators.

Keith's Theatre—The vaudeville program announced from Keith's Boston Theatre for the week of May 8 is unquestionably one of the strongest of the season. The leading entertainer on the bill will be Cissie Loftus, who will present a series of imitations of stage celebrities for which she is noted, including one of Albert Chevalier, who lately was seen at this popular amusement resort. Included in the surrounding bill are Eva Williams and Jas. Tucker, two of the most original and popular comedians in the varieties; The Empire City quartet, one of the greatest comedy singing organizations in the varieties; Eddie Girard and Jac Gardner, in the exceedingly funny comedy sketch, "Dooley and the Diamond"; Avon Saxon, a talented baritone soloist; Carleton Macy and Edna Hall, in a bright little playlet, called "A Timely Awakening"; Happy Jack Gardner, monologue and singing comedian and Roy Alton and Lillian Thelma, pleasing vocalists, in operatic selections.

Tremont Theatre—The return of Henry W. Savage's "Woodland" to the Tremont Theatre has been attended with some of the most unusual and extraordinary circumstances which ever marked a theatrical engagement in Boston. In the first place, the piece was played here for four months last summer, yet on its second engagement it has created more of a furor than on its first presentation. Then, after a year's run, almost the identical company was brought back by Mr. Savage, so that the old favorites are nearly all in their places. The scenery and costumes presented a fresh, bright appearance, and the lighting effects, upon which so much of the pictorial success of "Woodland" depends, were brilliant. The performances show no diminution in snap and verve, although things go with the perfect smoothness natural to players who have been giving them for a year.

An Auto Trip.

An interesting automobile trip through Italy, France and England has just been completed by B. F. Shattuck and family of West Newton, who returned home on the Arabic recently. The entire party is delighted with their experiences abroad, and likewise with the work performed by their aircooled American car. The ride through each country was full of novel and interesting experiences, some of which will remain as pleasant memories for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck, accompanied by their daughters Ednah and Edith, left Boston Jan. 28, taking their Knox car with them. They reached Naples Feb. 11, and then occurred their first experience with the customs officials. Duty was levied upon the machine, not on its mercantile value or horse power, but according to the number of springs possessed by the car.

Two springs were named in the inventory, but the customs official made a personal inspection. It was night when this inspection was conducted, and the official, with lighted match, walked all around the machine, holding the flame under and above, and in a general way conducting the inspection in a manner absolutely forbidden by the insurance companies of this country and likewise by the common laws of safety. Nevertheless it was found that the Knox had but two springs, and so the duty of 230 livres was demanded and received.

Four days were spent in Naples, seeing the wonders of that famous city, and then came the start for Rome. Rain came down in torrents, the roads were poor, and but slow time was made, the party taking four days to complete the trip. Two of these days were, however, spent in the mountains, the party being out for pleasure and having no occasion to make a rushing trip between points.

A week was spent in Rome, and there was not a single point of interest that was not inspected and thoroughly enjoyed. On the trip to Florence the weather was much improved, and the roads were a little better, but even then they were worse than the roads of New England. A great amount of surface rock had been placed on the roads to repair them, and every stone had 16 or more of the sharpest corners imaginable. They made trouble with the two rear tires, both of them going by the board.

Still the trip to Florence was completed, and the arrival was at a most opportune time. It was the season of the carnival, and the American party and the American machine was bombarded with confetti all the way through the city to their hotel. It was an exceptionally interesting introduction to the city of Florence that was accorded the visitors, and the days spent here were fraught with delightful experiences.

Three days were spent here, Mr. Shattuck in the mean time sending to Milan for new tires of the armor-clad type. Genoa was the next place of interest visited, and on the run there the weather and the roads improved immensely. Lucca and the leaning tower of Pisa, and then came the crossing of the frontier into France. Before leaving Italy the customs fee deposited was secured.

Crossing into France, came another exchange of courtesies, which were conducted with great difficulty, as each party to the conference was unable to speak other than his native language. The difficulty was finally adjusted by the depositing of 700 francs, in an assorted collection of French, Italian and English money, and in time to permit of the party arriving at Nice in season for dinner.

The run from Nice through the summer resorts of San Remo, Cannes and Aix through the central portion of France, via Orleans, the home of Joan of Arc, through the chateau district of Fontainebleau to Paris itself was delightful in the extreme.

The trip from Nice to Monte Carlo was beautiful, the route being along some of the finest Napoleonic roads up wide and steep grades, the greater portion of which were ascended on low speed, and that too without heating the motor or retarding the speed to any considerable degree.

After reaching Paris the party retraced its steps to Monte Carlo, where a few days were spent. From Paris the tour was continued to Boulogne, where the party boarded a steamer for Folkestone. At Folkestone Mr. Shattuck enjoyed the pleasantest customs experience of his entire trip.

From Folkestone, Mr. Shattuck toured to Liverpool, his family going direct to London, where he rejoined them after his trip to Liverpool.

Mr. Shattuck was delighted with the way his car worked on this entire trip, saying that the only delay experienced was that caused by tire trouble, and that the machine went along without any trouble whatever.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

There are two sessions of the Senate daily, one informal and the other formal. The first is held in the Senate Reading Room and is not opened with prayer by Chaplain Horton, but numerous prayers are uttered by certain supplicants into the ears of certain honorable Senators, and are answered according to the fervency of the petitioners and the inclination of the possessors of the ears into which said petitions are uttered. An hour spent in that reading room during the informal session referred to, is not without its lessons if one is inclined to sit aside and watch the formation and dissolving of groups during the "fixing" period. The observer needs no opera glass to watch the actors in the drama neither does he need an ear trumpet to hear all that is said, for he is too near the stage to require those artificial aids to the eye and ear. This reading room session generally takes place between twelve and two o'clock, the latter hour being the time at which the formal session opens in the Senate Chamber, where the formalities are gone through with, which give form and color to the real thing that has been cooking in the handsome bake-shop over the way. The Honorable Senate has not yet thrown about its reading room the awful circle that surrounds the House which forbids the entrance of the common citizen who might otherwise mingle with the very elect and perchance "touch" the hem of their garments and peradventure find the opening in the robes of office. The House is more careful of its official sanctum than is the Senate, consequently the birds of passage find rich feeding in new blood to take the place of that drawn from its veins, by the action above referred to.

The Senate refused to concur with the House in the Stock Exchange monopoly of futures and margins, and the bill goes back to the House, which will result in a committee of conference. The Taft amendment will go eventually, however, or the bill will take the next General Court sidetrack.

The Lowell unlimited license liquor bill, was carefully folded away last Friday by the Senate in a sort of a Lewando's dry process method that was beautiful to behold. The vote stood 16 to 15 when President Dana added his vote to the 15, and the chloroform took effect. There were those who went away after the vote with dry eyes, but that company did not include Hayes of Lowell.

Readers of this paper are reminded that the action of the Public Lighting Committee in reporting the bill granting, in accordance with law, public ownership of gas and electric light plants, does not affect in the slightest degree what was here said last week about the situation in Boston. That was a statement of facts. The proposition submitted by the committee is simply a Socialistic possibility.

The bill for the abatement of the smoke nuisance in Boston was postponed to May 4th. The longer the matter is postponed, the more of a nuisance it becomes and the more the patience and the good clothes of the citizens will be spoiled. The only class that is benefitted by the existence of the nuisance is the laundrymen, and possibly the scrub women.

Every consumptive in the Commonwealth owes a vote of thanks to Representative Gogins of Cambridge men, Mr. C. R. O'Donald, Dr. S. L. Eaton, Mr. C. F. Johnson, Mr. A. St. C. Hilton and Mr. Robert Levi. The meeting showed a step forward in all departments of its work. A committee was appointed to raise funds for the proposed additions to the church building.

Farewell Gift.

As soon as he had finished a farewell address to the students of Lasell Seminary, Auburndale, at the exercises in the chapel Saturday, the Rev. T. Corwin Watkins who has lately begun a pastorate at the First Methodist Church at Milford was presented three beautifully bound volumes of the "Life of Phillips Brooks" by the students.

The presentation was made by Miss Martha Haskell who in behalf of the other students and the teachers, expressed the regret of the school at the departure of Mr. Watkins and wished him success in his new field.

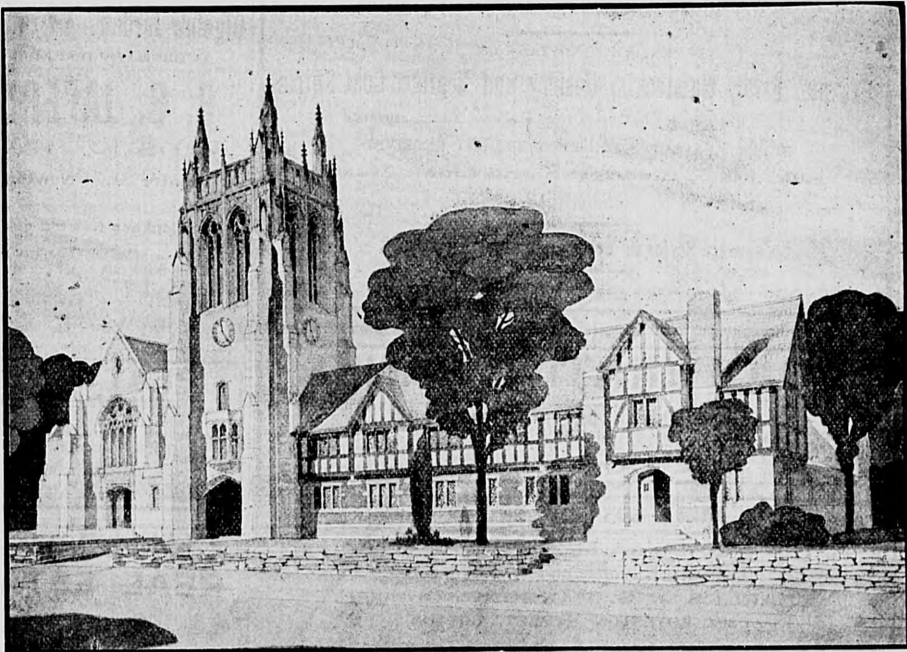

For two years Mr. Watkins has filled the double position of pastor and teacher of psychology and sociology at Lasell Seminary. At the last Methodist conference he was transferred to the Milford church where he is to devote his time to pastoral work. The presentation occurred at the close of the service in the chapel, at which the retiring pastor had told the students the reason for his going and had expressed the feeling that the two years he had passed at Lasell had been the sweetest years of his life.

the open Senate and its accessible approaches. As a result, their appetites are, in a degree appeased. In this reading-room congregate the cancrine lobby, that body of many hues and varied degrees of value, and as its members mingle with the forty with great freedom, one is at a loss where one element begins and another ends. Lobbyist Smith bows down his head and whispers to Senator Brown with a mysterious significance that suggests a certain event which once took place in the Garden of Eden, and Ex-Senator Fogg stands on his tip-toes and imparts his breath to living Senator Tallar, suggesting the quick and the dead in communication. The Press Censor is looking after his invisible flock, and Practical Politics is making a note of things in general. It is a busy hour to be sure, and when the bell rings to call the President to his official chair, more than half of the honorable Senate is in the midst of giving and imparting suggestions of more or less value upon pending legislation.

The Shaw-Kidder-Peabody interests for a street railway route from Boston to Providence, have drawn first blood, as Ex-Mayor Blood of Fitchburg, in the interests of the Boston and Rhode Island Railway, has withdrawn the petition of his company. Now the committee has the somewhat delicate question of deciding which shall have a charter, the Shaw company or the Stone and Webster company. It will be indeed a delicate question, in view of some things which have occurred. The report will be made before this paper goes to press, but the question will not be settled until the legislature settles it, and the committees report may need for Mr. Gogins threw down the Ways and Means champion (Walker of Brookline) in regular Jiu Jitsu fashion. The Cambridge man will probably never die of consumption if the prayers of those afflicted with that disease can save him.

Representative Ward of Buckland appeared one morning last week with a Lawson pink in his buttonhole. That may have been one reason why the causes which he advocated during the day was defeated.

Cape Cod is to have another canal. The canals that have been dug on Cape Cod have about wiped out the map of that location, but only the map has been affected as yet.

It is to be regretted that the State has the care of the insane, and the Gypsy Moth on her hands at the same time.

ST. PAUL'S ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's parish was held last week Tuesday evening in the parish room. The treasurer reported the parish to be in better condition financially than ever before, with a good balance on the right side of the books. The Sunday school mite offerings for missions from 170 members of the school amounted to $415, all of it earned by the scholars. The report from St. Paul's house at Newton Upper Falls was very gratifying showing the house to be doing good work and of great social benefit to the people. The following officers were elected: Senior warden, Mr. Arthur S. Williams; junior warden, Mr. L. M. Pratt; treasurer, Mr. E. H. Tarbell; clerk, Mr. J. H. Vose; five vestry-

—The fellow employees of Lionel Wyeth, who participated in the Marathon race on Patriots Day, presented him with a handsome gold watch last week as a mark of their esteem and to encourage him to future effort.

—Rev. Dr. Hazard, editorial secretary of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society gave an interesting address on "The Training of a Child" at the Congregational church last Sunday evening.

—Mr. Amos R. Wells of Auburn place will be in charge of the meeting of the Friendly Class at the Congregational church the three first Sundays in May. The topic to be considered is "How Our Bible Came Down to Us, the Manuscripts, the Translations, the History of the English Versions."

—Cards have been sent out this week announcing the wedding of Arthur Somerby Plummer and Annie Campbell Dearborn which occurred Saturday March 18th at Brookline. Rev. Thomas VanNess, pastor of the Second church, Boston, was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Plummer will make their future home at 11 Norway street, Boston.

—The funeral of Ruth P. Redding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse M. Redding was held from the family residence on Oakland avenue last Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. C. M. Southgate, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated and the interment was at Newton Cemetery. The child was 10 years of age and died at the Newton hospital Tuesday last week of lockjaw following an injury.

When a man has devoted the greater part of a mature life to the faithful, conscientious and successful teaching of the children of one village, he has won the respect and esteem of the entire community. When to his ability as an educator, are added the graces of a fine character, a genial personality, a winning smile and a warm grasp of the hand, that respect and esteem are welded into an affection which embraces every man, woman and child who comes in contact with him. Such in brief was the position held in this community by the late master of the Bigelow school, Mr. H. Chapin Sawin.
It was manifested during his years of labor by the cordial spirit between parent and teacher and between teacher and pupil, and was plainly in evidence last Friday morning in the tear covered faces of old and young alike when the news of his unexpected death was announced. Further evidence was furnished at the funeral services when upwards of one thousand persons gathered to pay their last sad respects to his memory.

Words of eulogy are sadly wanting to express the sentiments of the people in such a time of sorrow, when every heart is sore with the sense of a personal loss and the community is so vastly poorer for his passing away.

His best eulogy is in the tears of the children, his choicest requiem is sung in the hearts of the people, and his monument is in the characters of the boys and girls he has educated.

Railroad gardener Richardson deserves the gratitude of nature lovers for the magnificent displays of glowing masses of forsythia at West Newton and Newton. They have been admired by thousands during the past two weeks.

While the new Unitarian Church at West Newton will be an ornament to that village, it is doubtful if the new location of the old Allen school building will add to the attractiveness of the place.

Y. M. C. A.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Newton Association was held Wednesday evening. The guests of the evening were His Honor, Mayor Weed, Dr. Geo. S. Butters and Rev.
F. S. Hatch. President S. M. Say-ford presided. About 80 members sat down to the banquet provided by the Women's Auxiliary.

A very successful year's work was reported by the general secretary H.
W. Bascom. Dr. M. E. Gleason presented the letter N to 10 athletes who won honors during the winter in competitive games. Mr. Lewis Smith sang very acceptably. The guests of the evening responded to toasts in a very happy manner, after which Mr.
Sayford spoke for a few minutes. It was one of the best annual meetings ever held. The following gentlemen were elected as directors for the coming year: S. M. Sayford, C. V. Moore, Allan C. Emery, E. O. Childs Jr., J. R. W. Shapleigh, C. L. Ellison, T. W. Cone, C. A. Haskell, F. D. Barker, Mrs. Fuller, W. H. Short.

The minstrel show given by the junior department on Thursday was a great success. Mr. Emerson Bailey trained and directed the chorus. The end men were Robert Blue, Harry King and Walter Moore; bones: Amos Mills, Winslow Dunne, Harold Moore, tambourine: Al. Robert Blue Sr., Leonard Edwards, Wm. Hildans, F.
Finley and the Zanzibars of Waltham appeared in the olio.

"The Players."

"The Players" completed its 42d series and the 19th season by presenting Madeleine Lucette Kyles' four act comedy "Jedbury Jr." in Temple Hall Monday and Tuesday evenings.
The character parts were well sustained by Mrs. W. S. Osborne, the Misses Ethel Perrin, Isabel A.
Southgate, Ethel Howland and Messrs Frank B. Lawler, Waldo Glidden, Lennox H. Lindsay, Charles E.
Hatfield, Charles W. Cole, Arthur W.
Hollis, Herbert Haskell and H. C.
Johnson. The acting manager was Mr. Waldo Glidden, stage manager, Mr. George R. Pulsifer, and the properties were in charge of Mrs. Francis Newhall and Miss Jessie F. Root.
The ushers were Messrs Harry L.
Burrage, Philip R. Spaulding and William T. Farley. Music was provided by Owen's orchestra.

A Brilliant Reception.

A May breakfast complimentary to Miss Fanny B. Allen, retiring regent of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A.
R. of Newton was held at the Braeburn Country Club, on Wednesday.

Miss Allen, looking very charming in a violet crepe gown, and carrying a large bunch of pink roses, a gift from the Chapter, assisted by Miss Mary A. Green, former state regent of Rhode Island and by Mrs. Arthur P. Friend and Mrs. Charles S. Dennison, vice regents of the Lucy Jackson Chapter, received the ladies in the large hall of the clubhouse.

Mrs. Gardner I. Jones, Mrs. John N. Eaton and Mrs. Clinton L. Eddy acted as ushers.

A delicious breakfast was served in the "Moon Room" at one o'clock the decorations consisting of flags and red and white flowers being most effective and appropriate.

The officers' table was especially beautiful, with its mound of red and white tulips in the centre of a round table, seating eighteen.

Mrs. Arthur P. Friend acted as toastmistress. The toasts, Our Retiring Regent, The Lucy Jackson Chapter and The D. A. R. and for what it stands, being responded to by Mrs.
Arthur G. Hosmer, Mrs. John N.
Eaton and Miss Mary A. Green.

Miss Allen also spoke a few words of appreciation to the Chapter.

At the close of the exercises all repaired to the hall and listened to a piano selection by Mrs. David E. Baker and Mrs. Frank W. Pray.

Mrs. George R. Pulsifer contributed to the musical program by singing several charming songs after which all joined in singing "America."

The occasion was very delightful, all the members being most eager to express to Miss Allen their hearty appreciation of her services and their sincere regret at her resignation.

The affair was in the efficient hands of Mrs. George Hutchinson to whom the success of the occasion is due.

ENTERTAINMENT CLUB.

The third and closing production of the Entertainment Club took the form of Parlor vaudeville and was held in Channing church parlors last Wednesday evening before a large and representative audience. Facts worth noting were that all the features were of equal interest, appeared promptly and in every case encores were given. Miss Woodworth presided artistically at the piano, Mr. E. P.
James showed a high degree of perfection as a magician, for an amateur and Mr. Ralph Angier was extremely funny and sprang many local hits on the audience in his role as a blackface comedian. Miss Vera Curtis was in excellent voice and Mr. J. S. Chipman as Senorita Catalina in Spanish dances proved himself an adept in his line. The performance ended with a group of funny stories by Mr. Harry P. Dowst. The annual business meeting of the club will be held in the Channing church parlors next Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

RECEPTION.

On Wednesday afternoon a reception was given to Mrs. T. Corwin Watkins by the Methodist Sunday School of Auburndale. For the past six years Mrs. Watkins has been a worker in the church and Sunday school, being at the head of the Primary Department. The reception was well attended both by the children and parents. Young boys acted as ushers and as each child of the Sunday School passed by the reception line he presented Mrs. Watkins with a carnation as a token of good will.

Mr. Isaac Dillingham, superintendent of the Sunday school presented Mrs. Watkins with a silver candelabra. Fruit, lemonade and cakes were then served. Mrs. Watkins' loss will be greatly felt in the community.
The family are leaving for Milford, Mass., where Dr. Watkins will resume again his duties as a pastor, having been for the past two years professor of ethics in Lowell.

The gift is in recognition of his valuable services as coach to the principals in the cast and was presented to him at the regular Thursday afternoon rehearsal at Temple hall.

NEWTON FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

The tenth annual meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs was held Tuesday at the Channing Church. The morning session was given up to the reports of officers, chairmen of committees and the presidents of the various clubs comprising the Federation. Miss Helen A. Whittier, the president of the Massachusetts State Federation, was present at the morning session and brought greetings from that organization. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. C. G. Wetherbee, Monday Club; vice-presidents, Mrs. F. W. Jones, Ladies' Home Circle; Mrs. F. E. Anderson, Woman's Club; Mrs. Bernard Billings, Plerian Club; recording secretary, Miss Grace M. Burt, Social Science Club; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. R. Bailey, Woman's Educational Club; treasurer, Miss Lila A. Rider, Auburndale Review Club; auditor, Mrs. A. G. Sherman, Newtonville Woman's Guild.

Luncheon was served at one o'clock to about one hundred and fifty. After the luncheon these toasts were responded to: The Babyhood of the Federation, Mrs. George G. Phillips; the Hardhood, Mrs. Walton; the Sisterhood, Mrs. J. W. McIntyre; the Livelihood, Mrs. W. C. Richardson; and the Likelihood, Mrs. F. W. Huntington.

The program of the afternoon consisted of scenes from Dickens illustrated by members of the various clubs and proved equally entertaining to both actors and audience. Scenes from Old Curiosity Shop were given by the Auburndale Review Club, including the Inimitable Sarey Gamp father, and Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks; the Rural Suffrage League presented from Martin Chuzzlewit several scenes including the Inimitable Sarey Gamp and Betsey Prig; Mrs. Vincent Crumple's travelling theatrical troupe from Nicholas Nickleby, was given by the Social Science Club; the Monday Club of Newton Highlands presented characters from David Copperfield, the president of the Federation, Mrs. Wetherbee, reciting them; scenes from the Christmas Carol were given by the members from the Plerian Club of Newton Upper Falls; a view of Grandpa and Grandma Smallweed of Bleak House was given by members of the Newtonville Guild; and Mrs. Leohunter's Breakfast to Mr. Pickwick by the West Newton Women's Educational Club completed the program. Fine vocal music was rendered by Miss Marian Haskell of Newton Centre, and several violin selections by Miss Bessie Loring, Mrs. H. P. Lesh, accompanist.

The Newton Mother's Club was admitted to membership making a total of eleven clubs with over 1200 members in the Federation.

Miss Whittier's address was as follows: I was very sorry to decline your invitation for lunch, but I am very glad that I can come here instead, for this feast of reason will satisfy me much better than anything you could give me to eat. The reports which we have listened to this morning show that the club movement is in a very advanced stage in this city of Newton; it shows that the women here have been organized for many years; the very fact of a federation pre-supposes some long continuance of club life, for federation is in the course of the club movement.

I suppose that Mr. Cleveland was not invited to this meeting. I am afraid if he had been invited he would not have come, but I wish that he might be here to hear the report of what these clubs have done and that when he reminds us so frequently that "the hand that rocks the cradle," etc., we would like to remind him that women would not find it very profitable to sit beside an empty cradle and rock it, and that there are things to do for the children as they grow older; and he himself says in his illuminating article on the woman's club, that women have the education of children to care for and the encouragement of men in the principles of good citizenship, and that is exactly what the woman's club movement means. We are all conscious of that more and more, and now when the men, the good men, the good citizens, are calling upon us every day for help, we can see to what this club movement is coming, to what it has already arrived.

The new woman, that we hear so much about, is popularly supposed, at least by the writers for the press, to be some one who neglects her home for the sake of public work, etc., but it was interesting a few months ago to see in the "Outlook," that magazine which you know is rather conservative and its editor so conservative that he has to come on from New York every year and oppose Julia Ward Howe and others interested in the extension of suffrage to women. This very conservative magazine says, that after all, the new woman is not so very different from the old woman, that instead of being slightly interested in her own children, in their education, she is now finding that it is necessary to be interested in the public school system of the town and state; that instead of being interested in her own kitchen as the old woman, the new woman finds that she must be interested in the question of sanitary inspection, pure food, that she must take up the study of household economics in order to wisely administer the affairs of her own kitchen. And so the editor goes on to say that the new woman has a broader outlook for the public welfare. In the case of public health the mother of the family used to be concerned for the sanitation of her own home and for the care of her own children, now, as we were told last October by Dr. Knopf, woman must feel that she is responsible for the health of the nation, that it is not enough to take care of her own house. Just as in the case of the brown-tail moth, if we take care of our own trees it does not do much good if our neighbor fails to do the same; and so we must community is caring for these things. So in the public health, in domestic science, education, in all these questions, we must use these two factors which were alluded to in one of the reports, individual influence and combined influence. That is just what the club movement gives us, it shows us just what individual influence is and responsibility is, but how many women were conscious of that before we were united in the clubs? And then, having come together and found out our individual responsibility, we are ready for our combined responsibilities, and so we are becoming a great power in the land. This power is growing stronger at a very rapid pace. Just in our own federation, our numbers have increased fifty percent and probably more than that, in the last two years.

The standing committees have more than doubled in number in that time more than doubled in the amount of work done in the calls which come to them from the clubs. This idea of federation is more and more coming to be the accepted idea for work. We see it not only in our own organization, but in all other organizations, and this federation work must be as closely organized as our clubs. We must bring together the clubs to have them feel this united responsibility in federation, and this town Federation of yours, this city Federation, is an immense factor among them.

It is evident in the reports of the work you are doing in common, what a benefit it is that you come together in this Federation. The General Federation has been a loosely organized body in the past. The first few years it existed very largely for the sake of the biennial. Its biennials were great in their influence in bringing the women of all sections together, but between the meetings the organization was so loose that we felt the connection very slight; and now, under our able leader, Mrs. Decker, the lines of organization are being drawn more closely and she is bringing about a unification of work throughout the country, which is going to bring greater results than we have known.

You are possibly aware of the latest letter to each State Federation president in the country asking that the committees in the State Federation be modelled, so far as possible upon those in the General Federation. The executive board of the Massachusetts Federation, at its last meeting, took action upon that suggestion of Mrs. Decker's and have remodelled our committees. That is to say, we have changed their names, which have in some cases been outgrown, so that our committees now will read almost identical with those of the General Federation; and we are going to ask the clubs to model their committees, so far as feasible, upon the State Federation. We do not require clubs to change their method of work. The aim of the Federation is to inspire the clubs with this desire to do certain lines of work. We do not force any club to take up the lines which we suggest, but the object of the Federation is to inspire a desire to work in certain lines which are for the benefit of the community and the whole commonwealth and to make suggestions for the clubs that will help them in that work; and so, we are getting our forces into better working order.

The success of the civil service reform committee of our state in helping to defeat the bill giving preference to the veterans of the Spanish War was a notable instance of our stronger organization. There was a campaign inaugurated by our state committee by which every club in the Federation was reached immediately after the bill was introduced, and the result was a large petition, which impressed the legislature immensely. The opinion was expressed by one of the representatives of the Massachusetts legislature that the time was coming when the legislature would hardly dare oppose anything that united womanhood of Massachusetts demanded. We are feeling more and more that the clubs should feel this responsibility for the public influence, for personal influence. That is the strength of the Federation, that is why we want just as many clubs as we can get represented, so that we may feel that in each town we have a group of women that will be ready to respond to the call and to use their personal influence, to inform themselves upon certain subjects, and then to use, if not the club influence, to use the personal influence in the families with their men, sons and husbands, to inspire them with this public spirit. That is the object of our work. It is well to have concrete results to show.

I was present at the Cantabrigia Club two or three weeks ago when President Briggs of Radcliffe spoke to the club and he told them that great as was their achievement in providing this scholarship, that he felt still greater was the spirit which they had aroused in favor of this work, that it was the spirit which they had succeeded in arousing. That is the very object of the Federation. We may succeed in doing this thing or that, we may bring certain laws to pass, we may effect certain improvements which are very desirable, but the greatest object which we can strive for is to educate our women throughout the state and to arouse a public conscience, to arouse a public spirit which will make all reforms possible, which will make, as in former days the public conscience of Massachusetts demanded the establishment of the public school system, so our work in every community is to arouse a public spirit which will care for the schools, which will care for the streets, for the public health; care for all those questions. That should be the greatest work of the clubs and of the Federation.

I want to say just one word that I forgot to tell you that our Massachusetts Model School in Georgia was burned to the ground. We had word that last Friday morning at about 2 o'clock in the morning it was found to be on fire and practically nothing was saved. I think the teachers were able to remove some of their effects. It was probably an incendiary fire and there was only partial insurance on it.

We feel very much crushed by it, but as in the case of so many disastrous fires in the past which have wiped out whole cities which have later grown up to greater beauty, we will hope that something in the future will come out of this, which will make it seem not quite such a heavy dispensation as it does at present.

DEEP SORROW

Felt by Entire Community at Death of H. Chapin Sawin.

Impressive Funeral at Eliot Church Attended by Immense Audience

An audience which completely filled the spacious Eliot Church, gathered on Monday afternoon, as a tribute of love and affection for the late master of the Bigelow school, Mr. H. Chapin Sawin. The gathering was not only large in size but was impressive in its appearance. It contained the rich and the poor, the old and the young, Protestant and Catholic, children and parents, all of them friends of the deceased and all joining in a common sorrow. The air was filled with emotion and tears were seen on many faces.

Prior to the services Mr. Everett E. Truette, the organist, rendered several selections, and the hymns were sung by the congregation and a boy choir led by Mr. H. M. Walton.

When the casket, preceded by Rev. Franklin S. Hatch of Eliot church reading the burial service, appeared in the vestibule, the vast audience rose respectfully until it had been placed in front of the chancel.

Rev. Mr. Hatch conducted the services which consisted of reading of a few among you today to whom, except the family, this grief comes with so much bitterness, so much in the nature of a personal loss as to myself. I formed for him a very strong affection and with me always the highest esteem, for I regarded him as one of our most useful citizens in this community and I look at his work as being of especial importance. I do not think it would be possible for anyone to overestimate the value of this man's work in the community. I saw a great deal of him, because, to my great surprise, I became a member of the School Committee and then I was thrown into official relationships with him, official relationships but which became, so far as he was concerned, most delightful occasions, bringing forth on his part and mine, the exchange of confidences so that it was never wearisome to meet him for conference but always a pleasure and satisfaction, especially as I learned better and better, as time went on, to understand the singularly beautiful spirit of this delightful man. I was the Scriptures and prayer, an address by Rev. George Wolfe Shinn of Grace Church, Scripture reading by Rev. Mr. Hatch, an address by Rev. Wolcott Calkins, a former pastor of Eliot Church, and prayer and benediction by Mr. Hatch.

The pulpit was completely hidden by the masses of beautiful flowers contributed by friends and classes.

The pall bearers were Hon. A. R. Weed, Hon. H. E. Bothfield, Aldermen Fred H. Stone and Thomas Weston Jr., Welles E. Holmes, Rev. R. K. Smith, Graham Fearing and True Hobart and the ushers were G. N. Putnam, R. W. Angier, E. I. Leeds, Wallace Wales, Arthur Porter, Newton Porter, W. H. Barker and E. O. Childs Jr.

A brief service was held at 450 Centre street prior to the public funeral, and the body was afterwards placed in the receiving tomb at the Newton Cemetery.

During the day of the funeral flags were half masted on the city buildings and at the hour of service the stores and post office at Newton were closed.

The addresses delivered by Rev. Dr. Shinn and Rev. Mr. Calkins were as follows:

Dr. George W. Shinn: I made the acquaintance of our brother, who has so suddenly been called out of life, only a few days after I came here to live in Newton, and that is thirty years ago. I was for a few days, the guest of General Underwood, then of Grace Church Parish, and had been for some time before, a member of the School Committee of this city. After he had introduced me to some of the families connected with Grace Church Parish, he said, and now I want to take you to our school so that you shall have the pleasure of knowing the schoolmaster. And so, at the time appointed, one morning I went with Gen. Underwood and became acquainted with the schoolmaster. He greeted us most cordially talked with us for a few minutes, then resumed his work, for work was more important at that time than welcoming generals and clergymen. The acquaintance which was then begun became friendship and then became a very strong affection, certainly on my part; so there thrown very much with him and after my connection with the School Board ended, the friendship which began continued and he would come to my house and say to me "I cannot talk with you any longer officially, but I know that you will tell me what you think about such and such questions, which have come up" and so we would sit down and talk over the interests of the school.

I think that one of the most beautiful, as well as one of the most sincere tributes ever paid to a man in the community, was the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. Sawin's connection with the public schools of Newton; eight years ago. Some of you remember very well that wonderful day; the great company of his former pupils some of whom had made themselves distinguished in their chosen callings already; the great company of parents, and then the members of the school gathered together to do honor to the man who had given himself for their interests.

Now, if you ask me, dear friends, today why it was that I respected and admired this man so much, I will give you an answer. First of all, he was a man who had achieved his station in life by the conquering of difficulties. He did not come into this world surrounded by many of the favoring circumstances which are around many others and which help them on their way to achieve progress; he had to overcome difficulties in every stage of his progress and he took an honest pride, as any man should take an honest pride, in having come through tribulations, having worked his way up until he occupied the commanding position he did and it so happened that the spirit that was developed in him by his overcoming difficulties, created a most marvellous tenderness toward poor and struggling youth. Every boy and every girl who came under his charge felt in the presence of one who thoroughly sympathized with every difficulty they had. How much he has done toward helping boys and girls overcome difficulties of their position, by encouraging them, by telling them that there was nothing they could not do if they sought help from above and went forward nobly and courageously. He had a tender, sweet, sympathetic spirit for the difficulties of his pupils.

Then in the next place I admired and respected him because he seemed to have so definite an aim in living, he studied with a purpose in mind. He did not fritter away his strength by aiming at too many things. He had prepared himself to be a teacher and you know there are only two kinds of teachers, some are born to be teachers and some acquire the art of teaching by great earnestness and industry. It seemed to me he was one of those born to be a teacher and then cultivated the powers that God gave him, so his work in life was exceedingly definite; he knew what he intended to do, he knew how best to do it and then he drew within himself whatever aims might make him effective as a teacher. Whatever he was, he was a teacher and he always had in mind that his great aim was to educate, to draw out the powers that were in others and devote them to the highest and best uses. And then besides this definiteness, you all know how enthusiastic he was. I was bound to him because he was a man full of enthusiasm. You meet a great many people who have great ability but who lack that wondrous power which gives effectiveness to what they attempt to do; to inspire in him earnestness, enthusiasm. It was worth getting, education; it was worth helping people to get an education. It would make them happier; it would make them better, it would enable them to more glorify their God, the better for their fellowmen and so he went enthusiastically to his work and whenever he saw any increased earnestness on the part of a boy or girl, when he saw some one who had not been diligent now becoming diligent, it was as if new fire awakened in him and nothing caused the man to glow as when he found his own class alive at the work, earnest, and some of you who have grown up may appreciate that, why he followed you up, why he sometimes came to your homes and had those earnest heart-to-heart talks with you. Sometimes, as an older boy said a while ago "I almost resented having Mr. Sawin following me up as he did. Why should he be so concerned about me when school hours were over, why should he pursue me into my own home," said the boy, "and now I understand it and now I love the man because he had been so faithful to me when I was a careless boy;" and some of the young people today will appreciate, as you do not today, in the years to come when you have grown in wisdom and experience, will appreciate how he brooded over you, watching for any indication of love of learning and of your having your souls turned in the direction that he liked. But, above all things, that which I respected and admired in Mr. Sawin was the very deep religious spirit which he always carried in his work. He was a servant of God; he believed that he was the servant of God; he was the disciple of Christ; he believed that he was Christ's disciple however humble he might make the confession of his faith in his life. He believed that this was God's world and that he was put here to make people better in God's world so that they might glorify God and show forth his praises here. And so he sought to leave an impress for good wherever he went and upon whatever soul came before him for his touch, and he put his touch upon souls and he made them realize how beautiful and how noble a thing it was to live and to grow in the likeness of Christ God who had revealed God to us and the glory and greatness of God's character. He did not talk much about religion with his pupils; he made no attempt to proselyte people of different religious faith to his own, but he lived his religion among them. He was a Christian man in whatever he did, in the simple things of the schoolroom as well as in the greater things which he was called upon to do and no child will ever look upon him and have a doubt that there is a man whose life was Christlike and whose great desire was that they might follow Christ and become like him.

Now, if you take these four elements and put them together you will understand what his character was, an honest pride in having fitted himself for a high work in life, a very definite aim in life and enthusiasm in doing his work, and then above all the bringing of his religion into all things both small and great. I won't detain you many minutes, I shall not enter into any biographical sketch, I simply want to stand beside his casket today and tell you the reasons I loved and admired him, respected him, the very reasons why you admire, respect and love him. I have sometimes thought that our community did not fully appreciate what such a man did for it, does for it. I know that there is for him a singularly high standard of appreciation. I know that in many communities the schoolmaster and the schoolmaster's excellencies are not regarded as they should be. I know that there has been in this city of Newton a very strong appreciation of his character, but I did not think that any standard has ever been fixed that would be entirely just when you think not only of what that man was, but of what he was not. I stand and tremble sometimes when I think of the power a schoolmaster has to blast the rising generation before him. I tremble sometimes when I think of the wonderful influence for evil that can be exerted, how evil can be and is started by an evil example. Nobody ever had an evil thought, one evil feeling started by coming in contact with this pure minded man; so I say that for not only what he was, but for what he was not, is worthy of the highest appreciation by this community. The occasion seems to me, dear friends, to intensify a most valuable lesson and that is the rich reward which comes at length from faithful continuance in well doing. Sometimes you grow very much discouraged; we see evil exalted, we see people seemingly prosperous, we see men who deserve well of the community not reaping their reward. The reward does not always come when we expect it. God is not limited by our days and years. But this man, because he was the servant of God and therefore the servant of this community, has made for himself a record that is engraven upon human hearts, that has been worked out in human character. Men may not always speak his name in the years to come but some day becomes a better man, some girl becomes a better woman because what this man did, has been worked into the growing character.

Can you recall anything more pathetic than the scenes that were witnessed on our streets when the news came that the schoolmaster was hurt, seriously hurt? How little children could scarcely speak to each last, but I always thought those gems which he used to have his boys and girls learn by heart, had a great deal more in them than mere practice of memory or even a gathering up of choice portions of good literature. There was something of character testing. We all know that. I never noticed anything in his life as a teacher that did not have that character, getting back to character. He was building men and women, that was his great thought. And now, dear friends, we have got to do something more than to say these things and leave our tribute here of affection and respect. I think this is something that must be lingering in the hearts of these boys and girls. We have got to do something so that Mr. Sawin would not be ashamed of his scholars. I think that is the deepest thought these boys and girls have now. You cannot do anything more for him, he can do you a world of good. He is going to live with you yet. He is going to be with you as a moving power; his character, his example is going to inspire you still, and now remember you cannot carry pictures as they carried that, the masterpiece, the Transfiguration, to the burial of your master and teacher, but O, those pupils of Raphael who followed him to the burial and looked at that marvellous creation of his and thought of it as his greatest monument, they had something more to think of, but I do not think that they had anything that can compare with what you have to think of. His poetry is written in your hearts, boys and girls, my dear young friends, he has been painting his face in your character and you are going to be better men and women because you have known him.

I remember one of Mr. Sawin's scholars who had been losing ground, falling off in his interests a little and came in my way to have a talk with that boy and finally I said "I think you and your father and mother will be influenced somewhat by my advice, and you know what my advice is other, how men and women stopped each other on the street and said "Pray God that man may get well. We cannot spare him," and then when the news came that he was called away, a great hush settled down upon this whole community. Oh, it was hard to bear, hard to bear it. Wealth could not buy that, wealth could not buy the respect and the affection that were accorded the schoolmaster. There is not anything in all the wide world that would have secured for him so permanent a record in human hearts and to live as he did, the servant of God and disciple of Christ, the servant of this community.

Rev. Walcott Calkins said:

I think many of you, my dear friends, have heard the story repeated in Rome, which does not exist merely in record but is actually carried as a fresh tradition still among those who have heard it from fathers and fathers and fathers for centuries, that when Raphael was carried to his burial, the most wonderful testimony of his work was the great Transfiguration just fresh from his last touches, carried in the procession. I think there will be a tribute to our dear friend that will surpass that, not the picture of a face, but the face itself will be carried in the procession, the faces formed by his influence, because we all know that character does touch the face and that all pictures are builded out by what is within us, and that the beloved teacher is shaping character, which really shapes the face and form. And how many characters have been really built by this beloved teacher? I know something about what the trials of a teacher are, and I cheerfully testify that I have never known, from my own experience and from a large acquaintance with teachers, any one who had a more intense desire to get at the very seat of character, to touch the conscience. I believe these young people are going to feel that beyond all other losses, they are going to lose a rousing teacher in learning, they are going to lack the animation of one who had a way of putting life and strength and rousing power into the dull routine of the class, but he has formed a great deal more than that, something that is eternal. I do not know whether he continued the practice until the very going to be? It is going to be that, if you do not rouse up and have a little more enthusiasm in your work that this next year had better be your last year. I have heard some talk of a college course for you, it won't pay; it certainly won't pay if you are going on with no more interest than this. How is it in your classes, don't the boys care much more about their studies than you do? "Well, no, none of the boys, two or three of the girls care a little more than I do, but none of the boys care about it." "Well, then, this next year better be your last year." That boy not only passed his college examination without any conditions but with honors, in three of them. His teacher told me that there was a sudden rousing up pretty soon after that talk of mine. Now that is one talk, perhaps a dozen more came in my way. Stop and think, that it is more than thirty years this teacher has been having such talks as that just when he saw the boys were going slightly below their average, he has been setting it before them and telling them that life, their intellectual life, very largely their spiritual life, is going to depend upon a rousing of their thought and effort—it is his life imparted to their lives.

Oh, what is the Transfiguration of Raphael? What is the greatest piece of art that has ever been put upon canvas or wrought by chisel, compared with the shaping of these immortal minds? And now, boys and girls, what are you going to do? We preachers are saying a few words, O, how inadequate, how far from what such a teacher as this deserves, and pretty soon our voices will be gone and he will be laid to his rest in his grave, what are you going to do for the honor of this man? I know and I know what you are thinking about, dear scholars, you are thinking about what used to be a heavy burden upon his heart, you are thinking how he was carrying a great deal more than good lessons, faithful work in the books, he was carrying the thought of your character and how he was helping to build it and you are going, by the help of God, you are going to give him the reward he asked you are going to show such a schoolmaster as this he is not going to die out of a community and not leave his mark.

You boys and girls that have taken our places in your schoolroom, you are going to build his monument. Everything we are saying today will soon be forgotten, these services, impressive as they are, are filling up only these sacred moments, but you are going to live the monument in this community for your beloved teacher, you are going to be what he was laboring for, and by and bye you will remember just as Rome always remembered, the carrying of that newly finished painting of the Transfiguration just after Raphael's death. This community is going to carry living poems lighted up by an inspired life of walking after the remains of their beloved teacher.

You know what he said, boys and girls, in just one lucid half minute after his fatal accident, just one little word he said, and it will always be remembered, it was about his boys and girls, it was about his work. He was thinking of who should take up his work. Do you know who is going to do it? No teacher, no teacher can ever fill his place. A good teacher, I pray God, may come and make a place of his own, no teacher is ever going to fill that place. We do not fill one another's places in this world. We make places of our own and God grant some good teacher will make his place here, but this is what is going to be done, the inspired life of the boys and girls that loved him and remembered him is going to be a greater monument than that wonderful picture of the Transfiguration that was carried to the burial of Raphael. —Immortal souls, growing and developing the character formed by his influence, are going to rise up and call their teacher blessed.

MILITARY DRILL ABOLISHED AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Clafin School to Become Part of Horace Mann District.

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held on Wednesday, April, 26 at 8 o'clock p. m. Mr. Gorham in the chair.

Present: R. S. Gorham, F. P. Saltonstall, W. E. Parker, A. A. Tilney, J. L. Caverly, R. K. Smith, Cora S. Cobb, H. E. Wells, S. E. Howard, Abbot Bassett, Marcus Morton, W. E. Knowlton, F. H. Tucker.

Mr. Morton, for the Committee on Finance and Supplies, reported in favor of the order referred at meeting of Feb'y 22, 1905, and recommended that the order, which follows, should pass:

Ordered. That a room, for special instruction of backward children should be opened in September 1905, and that the Board of Aldermen be requested to grant an extra appropriation of $500 to meet expenses of this room from Sept. 1905 to Jan'y 1906.

The order was passed.

Capt Howard, for the Committee on Teachers, offered the following orders, all of which were passed:

Ordered. That there be an afternoon session in the Jackson kindergarten, and that Miss Bickford and Miss Dyer be paid $30 each a month for conducting the same.

Ordered. That Ellen G. McGrath, salary at rate of $550 a year; Katherine E. Raley, salary at rate of $550 a year; and Catherine G. Metcalf, salary at rate of $600 a year, be appointed in the grammar and primary schools, for one year from Sept 11, 1905 to be assigned, later.

Ordered. That Segrid Eckman be appointed an assistant in the High School, salary to be at rate of $750 a year, for the school year beginning Sept. 11, 1905.

Ordered. That the resignations be accepted of Alice M. Lilly of the Bigelow School, to take effect May 5 or before, and of Lena Tukey of the Horace Mann School, to take effect May 19.

Ordered. That leave of absence for balance of present school year, without salary, be granted to Adelaide L. Thompson, supervisor of kindergartens.

Ordered. That Plan 1, for organization of the Clafin School, be adopted, the same to go into effect in September, 1905, it being understood that the Clafin School becomes hereby a part of the Horace Mann district, and that the Master of that school will give a portion of his time to the Clafin School.

A hearing was granted to members of the Grand Army upon the subject of military drill in the high school.

Speeches in favor of continuing the drill were made by Commander W. T. Shepard, Past Commander C. C. Patten, and W. A. Wetherbee, C. S. Ober and Capt. E. R. Springer.

Mr. Tucker, for a majority of the Committee on Special branches, recommended that the following order be passed:

Ordered. That at the close of the present school year in June 1905, military drill in the high school be discontinued.

The Board went into executive session for the purpose of discussing the matter.

Capt. Howard spoke at some length in favor of military drill, and presented two petitions signed by about 75 parents, requesting that the drill be retained and that $500 for equipment be appropriated. After full discussion the order for the discontinuance of military drill, as offered by Mr. Tucker, was passed.

Mr. Morton for the Committee on Finance and Supplies, recommended passage of the following order which was referred at the last meeting. That the Committee on Teachers be instructed to secure a teacher for Physical Training in the High School work to begin in Sept 1905.

The order was passed.

On motion of Capt. Howard, duly seconded, it was voted that the present term of the grammar, primary, and kindergarten schools close on Wednesday, June 21.

On motion of Mr. Smith, duly seconded, it was voted that there be no session of the schools on Monday, May 29, and that the Memorial Day exercises be held on the Friday preceding May 30.

Mr. Wells offered the following order:

Ordered. That notice be given to J. L. Randall, janitor of the Wade School, that his services will not be required after June 1, 1905. In order that this be passed at once, the rule as to reference was suspended and the order, duly seconded, was passed.

Mr. Knowlton, duly seconded, moved that Amendment to Chap. IV, Sect. 1, of the rules as referred in regular course at the last meeting, be passed. As the committee failed to make any report on the matter, the rule was suspended, and the amendment, slightly amended again, was adopted. The amendment is as follows:

At the regular meeting in May of each year teachers shall be appointed for the ensuing school year, except as hereinafter provided. Vacancies in the corps of teachers may be filled at any meeting of the Board. Teachers elected after having served three consecutive years shall unless otherwise specially ordered, be considered as elected to the Permanent List i. e. to serve during the pleasure of the Board, and teachers who have served less than three years may, by special vote of the Board, be elected to said, Permanent List.

All appointments shall be subject to the right of the Board to dismiss any teacher whenever it may think proper.

PROBATE COURT.
MIDDLESEX, ss.
To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Margaret E. Stroud, late of Newton, in said County, deceased.
WIKKEAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, has been presented to said court for probate, by Thomas J. Lyons, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the twenty-third day of May, A. D. 1905, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.
And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, at least before said court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days, at least, before said court.
First Judge of said court, this twenty-eighth day of April in the year one thousand nine hundred and five.

TYPICAL FRENCH CHILD.

The Everyday Life of a Girl Eleven Years of Age.

Let me take Felice Boulanger (which isn't her name) as a typical French child of my experience, gained after nearly three years' residence in France.

She is one of five children ranging in age from her brother of sixteen to the youngest girl of six. Felice has a skin like the sheen of a pearl (which is marvelous considering the amount of indigestible food she bolts five times a day); big, deerlike eyes, long lashed; daintily shaped but seldom clean hands; a thin, rasping and petulant voice even in her merriest mood, and a physique like that of a starved and homeless cat—narrow chested, spider legged and staminate generally. Yet she seems full of vitality—nervous, irritable vitality—eats as much food as an English navy, and certainly has, as my American lady friend says, "heaps of sense." But to see the child eating is painful, though interesting in a way.

An English girl of eleven years of age, like Felice, would be sent to bed at, say, 9 o'clock. Felice and her type and her younger sisters sit down to dinner at 6:30 p. m. and stay up until 11 or later, listening to the conversation of their elders—Louis Becke in London Mail.

CATERPILLARS AND LAW.

Actions Against the Insects in the Courts of France.

In the year 1546 the owners of the vineyards of St. Julian, Savoy, France, solemnly took action in the law courts against a host of hungry caterpillars which had played havoc with their vines. This grave matter was referred to arbitration and came in due course before the bishop as ecclesiastical judge.

Two lawyers were retained in the interest of the insect ravagers, letters admonishing them to discontinue their mischief were issued, and a commission sent to estimate the damage done. The judge held that no hasty decision should be given, since it was possible that the caterpillars had not acted maliciously, but had been sent as a scourge.

At the end of a year from the first proceedings it was held that the farmers must submit to the infliction and pay all costs. After an interval of forty-two years another army of caterpillars invaded the vineyards, another action was brought, and it was decided that they were only exercising their legal rights, while the owners were advised to provide a piece of land where they might range at will.

LONDON WHITEHALL.

It Was Known as York House Until Cardinal Wolsey's Fall.

Old Westminster palace was the London residence of the archbishops of York and was known as York House or York Place down to the reign of Henry VIII. On the downfall of Cardinal Wolsey, 1520, York House was delivered and confirmed by charter to the king, who changed its name to Whitehall.

There were already several Whitehalls in the country, and the choice of the name in this instance may have been due to new buildings of white stone, added by Henry VIII., which contrasted with the red brick in general use. Another conjecture is that the king wished to emphasize the depth of the cardinal's fall by erasing the very name of the palace so clearly associated with his elevation to power and position.

This appears to have been Shakespeare's view, for in Henry VIII. we read:

Sir, you must no more call it York Place; that's past.

For, since the cardinal fell, that title's lost.

'Tis now the king's and called Whitehall.

A Memory Failure.

A schoolteacher was trying to impress upon his scholar's mind that Columbus discovered America in 1492, so he said: "Now, John, to make you remember the date when Columbus discovered America I will make it in a rhyme so you won't forget it. 'In 1492 Columbus sailed the ocean blue.' Now, can you remember that, John?" "Yes, sir," replied John. The next morning when he came to school his teacher said, "John, when did Columbus discover America?" "In 1493 Columbus sailed the dark blue sea."

The Term "Bully."

The term "bully" in the days of Shakespeare had quite a different meaning from that which it has at present, being an expression of endearment and good fellowship. Some suppose that the word, when it is used in approval, is derived from the Dutch boel or German bulle, which stands for the English lover. The harsher use of the word is, however, to be traced to bellow, the root of bull, with a significance of noisy blustering.

The Common Kind.

"Did you ever notice that almost all these misers reported in the papers are single men?" asked Mr. Watts.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Watts. "Married misers are too common to be worth mentioning."

Satisfying.

"Do I squint, Charlie?" asked the girl.

"A little, Maude," he said tenderly, "but who wouldn't with your eyes? If mine were as beautiful as yours I'd be trying to look into them myself."

Indicative.

When a girl acts as if she were tied to the end of a comet and tries to look as if she were only buttoning her gloves, most likely she is just becoming engaged.—New York Press.

SOOTHING A HORSE.

The Animal's Easy Introduction to a Steam Street Roller.

In one of the broad uptown thoroughfares a few days ago a mounted patrolman encountered a steam roller in action, and the horse was terribly frightened. It reared and balked and then made angles across the street, first one way and then the other, until the policeman jumped off and tried coaxing. Leading his mount step by step in the direction of the roller, which had come to a standstill, he petted the animal and talked to it, urging it forward.

"A fine horse like you to be afraid of a steam roller," said the policeman. The horse pricked up its ears and ventured ahead another step or two.

"Come, now, come along. You can't be a policeman and be afraid of a bit of iron. Now come on, good boy."

The horse made a few more steps forward.

"Come on," continued the policeman. "Now, then, be good. The department can't afford to be giving $300 apiece for horses that haven't any nerve. Come on, now."

Coaxing it along in this way with infinite patience, the officer after several minutes got the animal up to the roller. The horse daintily put forward one foot and tapped the front of the iron wheel, waited a moment and, finding that the machine did not kick or run, reared contemptuously and tapped the officer with both feet, then wheeled and walked quietly away. The policeman remounted, and it is safe to say that horse will never bother about a steam roller again.—New York Post.

HISTORY OF SHOES.

In No Article of Attire Have More Vagaries Been Shown.

Shoes or their equivalent are of a certainty even more ancient than gloves, for they were a necessity of locomotion, while the other was but a luxury. Sometimes they were made of skins, sometimes of papyrus, as in Egypt. Often they were skinned and decked with jewels, and the most expert artists of the day were employed to decorate the foot coverings of wealthy patricians, consuls, emperors and their favorites. In no article of attire have more vagaries been shown. Today a lady who desires to be considered in the height of fashion wears shoes pointed as much as possible, but in the time of Queen Mary the taste was all the other way, and it was found necessary to issue a royal proclamation prohibiting shoes with toes wider than six inches. But perhaps the most extraordinary development in the way of footwear were the "clompies" introduced by the ladies of Venice to make themselves taller than they really were. The articles were really a kind of stilts made of wood and leather and sometimes reached the absurd height of twelve inches. Even a trained acrobat would have difficulty in walking on such things, and ordinary women had such trouble with them that when they attempted a promenade they required the assistance of a servant at each side and another behind to keep them from falling.—From Redfern's "Royal and Historic Shoes."

Thaddeus Stevens' Wit.

When Thaddeus Stevens had taken to his bed for the last time a visitor told him he was looking well. "Oh, John," was the quick reply, "it is not my appearance, but my disappearance, that troubles me!" One day a member of the house of representatives who was noted for his uncertain course on all questions and who confessed that he never investigated a point under discussion without finding himself a neutral asked for leave of absence. "Mr. Speaker," said Stevens, "I do not rise to object, but to suggest that the honorable member need not ask this favor, for he can easily pair off with himself!"

Evolution of the Skate.

The earliest known skates were those roughly shaped from the caudal bone of a horse or cow, and Scandinavian archaeologists claim an antiquity of 1,000 years for these. The wearer of these rude skates obtained speed not by a stroke of the foot, but by pushing himself along with a piked staff. Skates made entirely of wood were next introduced. These were followed by wooden ones shod with flat strips of iron. These were gradually developed bladed skates, and finally experts evolved the Fen type, Norwegian racer and figure skates of the present day.—London Standard.

Offering No Challenges.

"Do you claim that the world owes you a living?"

"No," answered Meandering Mike. "The man that goes around claiming makes himself unpopular. I'm satisfied to get my living whether it's owing to me or not."—Washington Star.

His Shortland.

Employer (to new clerk)—You don't seem to keep pace with my dictation. Why don't you write shorthand? I believe you told me that you knew shorthand. Clerk—So I do, but it takes me longer than ordinary writing.

Lacking the Motive Power.

"I wonder why the car doesn't start!" exclaimed an impatient passenger.

"There are not enough people on board yet to make the cargo," replied another who understood the situation.

On a Plate.

He—I'd like to take your photograph. Eddie. Really, you're sweet enough to eat! She—I see, and that's why you want to put me on a plate.—Illustrated Bits.

Newton CentreFittingly Recognized at a Memorial Service in Mason School.The memorial services for the late Miss Mary E. Mason, for twenty years a teacher in the Newton Centre district and for eighteen years principal of the Rice primary school, were held last Friday afternoon at four o'clock in the Mason School hall.
Over five hundred persons testified by their attendance that the years of Miss Mason's service had not been without appreciation and the last three classes taught by her were also present.Mr. William E. Parker of the school committee presided and the arrangements were in the hands of a committee consisting of Mrs. A. W. Harrington, Mrs. Warner R. Holt, Miss Margaret E. Martin and Master Copeland of the Mason school.

Mr. W. E. Parker:

It belongs to me, as your representative on the School Board, to preside at these exercises this afternoon, which are in honor of and loving tribute to the memory of Miss Mason.
It was not my pleasure, as it has beenprecept; with her it was not as I say, but as I do. Peace, poise, self-control and love, she had them all and lived them all. The pupils all imbibed deeply and richly of all those same virtues and showed them in the schoolroom as well as out. She trusted all her pupils absolutely, and they trusted her. She respected them all and they respected her. Her pupils were perfect ladies and gentlemen. I am speaking from observation and as near experience as can be. Often her pupils were left alone, Miss Mason visiting the other rooms or other business attending to. If ever I went into that room, the children alone, seated, a little boy politely looking up and offering to tell me where Miss Mason might be found. Would not have known they were in the building except seeing them; Miss Mason away. Miss Mason was very thorough; so were the pupils. They caught the spirit. Miss Mason was persevering;
so were the pupils. They caught the spirit. Her pupils excelled in what I call all round wholesome development.

MISS MARY E. MASON.

the pleasure of some of the other citizens of the village, to have long and intimately known Miss Mason, and yet during the first year of my office as the head of your school committee, it was my privilege and pleasure to have frequent and intimate conferences with her, mostly in the pleasant little room she occupied on my village street. There she took me very closely into her confidence and there I came to know something of the sweetness and depth and strength and charity and tolerance and justice of her disposition, and it gives me pleasure, personal pleasure today, as well as an official opportunity of welcoming you all as sharers in this tribute to her, and I hope whatever is said today and in whatever exercises there may be, there runs through it all a hopefulness and enthusiasm as well as solemn joy in tribute to her.
To know how sweetly joyous and inspiring in spirit she was, we certainly owe it to her.As I heard last Sunday morning the notice of this meeting given from the preacher's desk, there came to me the words of the gospel "An odor of ointment filled all the room where they were seated" and I am sure that the sweet odor that has come from the life of Miss Mason, which has filled her schoolroom and filled the hearts of many of our townsmen, has filled the lives and hearts of the many boys and girls, who shall carry the sweetness through all their lives.
It is a great pleasure for me today to announce to you that Mr. Spinney, an old master of the school and one perhaps longer in that position than any other master, has kindly asked the privilege and consented to come to speak to us in memory of her, and it now gives me much pleasure to introduce to you, Mr. William A. Spinney.

Mr. Spinney:

I think I recognize about all the faces here. Twelve years I had charge of the schools of this district, associated with Miss Mason in the Rice School. I know whereof I am going to speak. Miss Mason lived her ideals and her ideals were good ones, excellent and wholesome. Her example was as grand and grander than herThey were always happy, and I seem to think now, they were always well.
I remember in some cases where some of the rooms (comparisons may be odious) were depleted in numbers. I remember Miss Mason's, pardon me of course, seemed to me never to be depleted in numbers. Miss Mason emphasized the right and seldom spoke about the wrong. She told the children the beauties, the advantages of the right. With Emerson, freely I might quote from him this; She nerved her pupils with incessant affir-matives. She never barked at bad but she chanted the beauties of the good. She was a shepherd that "led her pupils into the green pastures beside the still waters," but she never drove them. She led them. If falsehood had to be attended to, I think she seldom ever used the word "don't," but "O, tell the truth."
Think of the beauties of the truth and illustrated, leaving falsehood to take care of itself. I noticed in the spelling lists she seldom ever, I never heard her, call attention to the number of words that were misspelled; it was always the number of words spelled correctly, and I hope that more will be in that line. I hear, and I suppose I used to say it myself, to the pupils, "Don't stand so and so, and don't sit so and so." I think Miss Mason always said "John, will you tell the class how to stand and how to sit the very best way?" Then she let him do it and then the children.
That was the best way, the attractions were put before them. I think she never said to any of her pupils, "If you do not study, you will never be promoted," but each day was "Let us succeed now, this minute." It was in her look, if not in her word. I do not think she ever said to her children, "Now, children, study, you must study," but they did study, they wanted to study, they loved to study.
Discipline went out of the window when love, in Miss Mason, came in the room. Discipline hardly ever known. All her pupils, all of those who have been under her care, passed through her room, or known her, are better men and women, boys and girls, today for having known her and that betterment will go on broader Minstrel Show.

The minstrel show given under the auspices of the Men's Club in the parish house of the Universalist church, Newtonville, Thursday and Friday evenings of last week drew out a large and representative audience. Many local hits were given and the laughter and applause was continuous. The success of the affair was largely due to the efforts of the entertainment committee consisting of Rev. Albert Hammett and Messrs Elden H. Jennison and L. Brown Renfrew. The director was Mr.
Hubert T. Smith, interlocutor Mr.
James E. Marriener, bones, Messrs A.
R. Logan and C. S. Logan and tam-bos Messrs E. H. Jennison and D. B.
Hawley. The chorus consisted of Messrs S. H. Shaw, H. T. Smith, L.
B. Renfrew, G. H. Stevens, E. Trofter, J. K. Park, P. C. Newell, W. H.
Zoller, N. L. Watson, Irving Jewett, James Hunting, A. R. Nagle, R. C.
March and H. Hinds. Vocal selections were given by the quartette Messrs Zoller, Watson, Stevens and Smith, solos by several members of the chorus and a monologue by Mr.
Ralph W. Angier. Mr. James H. Bond was the accompanist.

Funeral services for the late George W. Morse who died April 9 at Marseilles, France, were held on Sunday afternoon. After a service of prayer at the Morse residence on Central avenue, Newtonville, the casket was placed on a caisson, draped with the American flag and, escorted by Chas.
Ward Post 62 G. A. R. was taken to Grace Church, Newton, where there was a large gathering of military men and members of the Suffolk bar.

The body was taken to the chapel by a detail from 1st Battalion of cavalry under direction of Sergt. C. B.
Appleton.

The services were conducted by Rev. G. W. Shinn, the rector, Rev.
R. K. Smith, the assistant rector and Rev. Glenn T. Morse of Somerville, and included the reading of the Episcopal funeral service and chanting by the boy choir, prayers and the singing of the hymns "Nearer, My God to Thee" and "Tarry with Me, O My Savior." "The Last Chord" and "taps" were sounded by trum-pete John Flockton at the close of the services.

The pallbearers were Hon. John W.
Weeks and Messrs Brackley, Shaw and Henry M. Bigelow, representing the family; H. F. Dickinson Jr., Samuel J. Elder and Gen. Charles W.
Bartlett, representing the Suffolk bar and Lieut. Commander Charles W.
Tracy, USN, and Maj. John A. Fox, representing the Loyal Legion and 2d Mass Inf.

The body was then placed upon a special electric car at Mount square and accompanied by Col. I. F. Kingsbury and Major S. A. Ranslett representing the Loyal Legion and Col. E.
H. Haskell, Col. H. B. Sprague, Comrades Henry Haney, George Hill, W. W. Montgomery, C. C. Patten, C.
W. Sweetland, C. S. Ober and S. A.
Langley of the G. A. R. was taken to Bedford for burial. At the latter place the committal service of the Episcopal church was in charge of Rev. Mr.
Smith and Rev. G. T. Morse and was followed by the burial ritual of the Grand Army.

At a recent meeting of Chas. Ward Post 62 G. A. R. Congressman John W. Weeks was selected as the chief marshal for the Memorial Day parade and Col. I. F. Kingsbury was announced as his chief of staff. The parade this year will form at the Armory in Newton and pass through Washington st. around the bank into Centre st., to Commonwealth ave., to Ashton ave., to Homer st. to Walnut st. to the Cemetery. After the Cemetery exercises, the procession will go through Walnut st. to the parade grounds of the High School for the evening parade and after its dismissal to the banquet rooms in the Masonic building.

Instead of the barges to be used in the morning for the details to decorate graves the Newton Street Railway Company has furnished the post with the complimentary use of an electric car.

Reception.

The annual reception at the Newton Home for Aged People took place last Saturday afternoon from three to five o'clock and there was a good attendance of those interested.

Mrs. E. W. Warren of Newton Highlands and Mrs. Mary E. Martin of Newtonville received the guests in a most informal and delightful manner and the house, in charge of the acting matron, Mrs. M. F. Wilson was thrown open to all. Of the fifteen ladies, all but one were able to enjoy the visits of their friends, and excuse clerk Julius L. Clarke was the recipient of much attention.

The house was decorated with flowers furnished through the thoughtfulness of the President, Hon. Henry E.
Cobb, now in Europe, whose absence with that of Vice President Joseph Byers was much regretted.

The dining room was in charge of Miss Abby Spear of Newton and Mrs.
John A. Gould of Upper Falls, assisted by the Misses Johnson and Flimpt-on of Newton Highlands and Miss Emma F. Jones of South Boston.

High School Notes

Miss Rebecca Ford has won the est average for the past four years.

The graduation exercises will be held on Saturday June 24th.

The Park police stationed along the Charles between Riverside and Waltham saved eight people from drowning last Sunday. The mishaps were caused by canoes capsizing.

Sergeant Brawley, shortly after 11 o'clock, took two men from off an overturned canoe nearly opposite the Norumbega Park float.

An hour later Patrolman Scribner with Officer Kiley of the Newton police rescued three others who were struggling in the water near the Weston bridge.

About 2 o'clock three other young men were seen struggling in the water by Patrolman Chaisson near the Riverside float. Chaisson had difficulty in effecting their rescue, for as he approached one of the terrified men attempted to climb into the launch and almost overturned the craft.
The rescued were quickly taken to the emergency station. There their clothing was dried and they were lectured as to the necessary precaution concerning the use of canoes by Officer Scribner and Sergeant Brawley. The police declined to give the names of the rescued.

Tremont Theatre—Playgoers in Greater Boston no doubt will be gratified by the announcement that Raymond Hitchcock is to return to the Tremont Theatre next Monday for a limited engagement during which he will again be seen in the title part in "The Yankee Consul." Blossom and Roby's comic opera had its original production at the Tremont, where it sprang into immediate favor, and the opinion was universal that Mr. Hitchcock had done nothing so clever, so artistic, and so genuinely humorous as his creation of the character of Abijah Boozie. Mr. Henry W. Savage has given the piece the most elaborate dressing of any of his musical offerings.

Keith's Theatre—Camille D'Arville, the famous comic opera prima donna, is to be the headliner at Keith's next week. Miss D'Arville is a handsome woman, wears beautiful costumes and is blessed with one of the best voices ever heard in light opera. Included in the surrounding show is the Obersteiner troupe, a double sextet of Tyroleans; O Hana San, presenting the most beautiful and lifelike series of Japanese living pictures ever seen in this country; Howard and North, conversational comedians in "Happy Days"; Arthur Whitelaw, a clever Irish American humorist; the Majestic trio, an organization of "real coon" entertainers, and George Austin, a skillful comedy wire performer.
The biograph will show an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures.

Park Theatre—Robert Edeson will next Monday night, begin the last week of his engagement in "Strongheart" at the Park Theatre.
There is little doubt that playgoers who have not already availed themselves of the opportunity to see the greatest dramatic novelty of the day and the greatest acting that Mr. Edeson has ever done will hasten to secure seats for these final performances for which there is an insistent demand. A noteworthy feature of the farewell week of May 22 will be "Tufts Night" which has been set for the evening of Tuesday May 23.
As a feature of this occasion the orchestra between the first and second acts will play the college songs of Tufts to be accompanied by the singing of the students.

Boston Theatre—"The Earl and the Girl" which Sam S. Shaver is to present at the Boston Theatre next Monday evening, has the distinction of having been almost the only musical comedy success of the year in London. The story of "The Earl and the Girl" concerns the adventures of Richard Wargrave, the Earl of Stole, who has succeeded in "getting himself into such difficulties with Elphinstone, an American heiress, that he is afraid to make his appearance at his country house. In this quandary he induces Jim Cheese, a dog trainer, to impersonate him.
The bargain results in a series of mishaps and complications which are such as to provide endless trouble for the guests and cause endless merriment for the audience.

GARDENING WITH ECONOMY.

In buying trees, shrubs, roses, hardy perennials, vines, and everything for the garden, including dahlias and summer bulbs, go right to the Ideal Hill Nursery Co., 44 Broad St., Boston. Their stock is fresh from the ground and none of it is kept in cellars. For 25 years they have been the leaders as to good honest stock and low prices, and no other nursery in the country gives so much in practical advice, suggestions and plans for landscape and garden planting. Their catalogues are unequalled, and you save at least one third by writing for their special rates.

The Farlow Chapel in Newton Cemetery was well filled last Sunday afternoon at the funeral of Mr. Albert Brackett, who died some weeks ago in Florence. Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson pastor of Florence church, officiated and the service was a simple one consisting of scripture reading and prayer. The Temple quartette sang "Rock of Ages," "Gathering Home" and "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord." There were many floral tributes from relatives, friends and from the employees of the deceased who were present in a body. At the close of the service the remains were taken to the family lot for burial.

Precautionary Treatment.

The Dutch peasant lives with canals all about him and reaches his cottage by way of a drawbridge. Perhaps it is in the blood of the Dutch child, says a writer in M. A. P., not to fall into a canal. At all events the Dutch mother never appears to anticipate such a possibility.

One can imagine the average English or American mother trying to bring up a family in a house surrounded by canals. She would never have a moment's peace until the children were in bed. But then the mere sight of a canal to the English child suggests the delights of a sudden and unexpected bath.

An Englishman inquired of a Dutch-woman, "Does a Dutch child ever by any chance fall into a canal?"

"Yes," she replied, "cases have been known."

"Don't you do anything for it?" continued the questioner.

"Oh, yes," she answered. "We haul them out again."

"But what I mean is," explained the Englishman, "don't you do anything to prevent their falling in—to save them from falling in again?"

"Yes," she answered, "we spank them."

Tact.

George (nervously)—I'd like ever so much to marry you, Kitty, but I don't know how to propose. Kitty (promptly and practically)—That's all right, George. You've finished with me; now go to papa.

Expected.

Landlady—The coffee, I am sorry to say, is exhausted, Mr. Smith. Mr.
Smith—Ah, yes, poor thing, I was expecting that. I've noticed that for some time it hasn't been strong.

Arms and the Men.

Winkle—Count Duello is a daring swordsmen. Twinkle—Yes; he ran through a cool million without any trouble.

Cholly—I can't live without your daughter! Mr. Cashbag—Oh, yes, you can. Work never killed anybody yet.

"Quixote the Second."

A new three act comic opera by Newton authors, F. A. Wilcox and W. E. Hickox, was presented for the first time last evening by the Albemarle Golf Club in Temple hall for the joint benefit of that club and the Masonic Association. The opera is entitled "Quixote the Second" and the cast was made up of local talent.

There was a large audience and the opera was enthusiastically received, the musical numbers being given hearty recognition.

The hit of the evening was made by Hubert W. Pierce as Sancho, whose droll interpretation of the part kept the audience smiling. Among the musical numbers, the singing of "Love Stirr My Heart" and "The Owl and the Moon," by Mrs. Richard R. Griffin, the ballad, "The Clover's Prophecy," by Mrs. Paul R. Knight, and the serenade song, "The Breeze Thy Notes Prolong," by F. Lincoln Pierce, were especially pleasing and were heartily applauded.

The cast was as follows:

A MEMORIAL.

and wider and deeper in its effect forever. Why indeed, to say or to hear Miss Mason's name spoken was inspiring to the pupils. To be in Miss Mason's presence as pupil, or teacher himself, or anyone, to be in her presence was to be uplifted. I indeed think that she was a tower of strength. I say, be glad that Miss Mason lived and still lives. Let us not mourn her passing. Her holy spirit abides with us and will abide and increase.

Mr. Nathaniel L. Berry.
When we have met with a great personal loss it is often the case that grief finds better expression in silence than in words; so it is not my purpose today to commendation the slightest degree on the unspeakable loss which this community has sustained; but it is my privilege rather, and I take great pleasure in doing it, to express my appreciation of the work, the valuable services as a teacher, and the influence of the charming personality of that good woman, Miss Mary E.
Mason.

When I came here, twelve years ago and entered the Rice School for the first time, the impression which I received of that school and the woman at its head, was the same, except that it has strengthened as the years have gone by, that I had on each succeeding visit until the last. It is indeed for me to commend to you who knew her in a personal way even better than I could, on the charming personality which was hers; but it is my privilege today, to say a word on two lines. As an executive she had marvellous skill and exceeding tact, and not only was there a spirit of utmost harmony and peace among the teachers of that school, but as teacher she was a continual inspiration, by the quality of her effort, by the breadth of her view, and by her high order of living. I know of no woman with whom I have met in school work whose influence, while so quiet and unostentatious, was so tremendously powerful for good. As a teacher she had the great gift of seeing the end from the beginning. There is probably no period in a child's school life of so great importance as the first three years that we call primary. At that time the child is susceptible to the influence and accepts the teacher's dictum in every respect for everything. She realized her opportunity and appreciated her privilege and her daily life was filled, not with the mere routine of school work, but with the training of the taste, and the building of character as well, and with helping the children to live, by the best things on broad lines. Living with her was a fine art. I have seen lessons, not only in my own line of work, but in other lines as well, conducted in her school when the influence on me personally, was such as you have felt when you have heard some delicate stringed instrument played by a skilled hand. It was remarkable, and I want to illustrate it in two ways, exactly what I mean.

Before doing that may I say that with all the fine qualities which seem to me went to make up her success as a teacher she had that sense of humor, which is so great a lubricant in the schoolroom. The last work done for me, so far as I can remember, or the one which I remember most clearly is the exercise in which she had the children represent children at play.
I entered the room directly after a lesson had been conducted, finding on the table some drawings of boys playing ball. Most remarkable set of work for little children. I said, "Miss Mason, how did you ever get such a result?" "Why," she said, "we talked about the game of ball and I had these boys tell me the first thing to do and then the next, and then told them, 'Now, go and draw it.' You see an insight into that character; the power to inspire children, and with that she had that great gift of holding them to their best effort."

Another little exercise which I saw conducted there as much as four or five years ago, made an impression that will never be removed from my mind. It was in the time, when in the line of science study, the subject of the distribution of seeds was under consideration. As I entered the door the window was open and Miss Mason stood at the open window, with a class of perhaps eight or ten children, with a milkweed pod opened from which she was picking the separate seeds, throwing them out of the window as she did the children were repeating a little memory gem. I watched the thing until the end and as she had finished and I saw the attitude of those children toward the work in hand, I felt, I think, as I never felt before, the force of that beatitude, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Now, I think no teacher ever on the face whose influence will be longer felt.
Her life, it seems to me, was in perfect accord with those lines, Without halting, without rest, Lifting better up to best, Sowing seeds of knowledge pure, Through earth to ripen, through heaven endure.

Many of you who are here today not only feel now, but are going to feel through years to come, the imprint of her life and work. Let us be devoutly thankful that so rich an inheritance is ours.

Mrs. David Harrington.
When our most blessed Lord was on earth, people wanted to know then, just as they wish to know now, who are the greatest people, who are the nobility, the aristocracy, the four hundred, we might say; and so they went and asked him who is the greatest. He told them that the greatest would be he who served the most, and if any one of you want to be great you must go and serve. And so we come today to pay our tribute to one of the greatest, for she was one amongst us who served, and she served with a patience and sweetness and cheerfulness and wisdom that I have never seen excelled by any teacher. Her motherhood was marvellous. I remember once hearing the Rev. Adolph Roeder give a very beautiful talk on how God trained mothers. He said that God began when we were very little children and a man, if he knew anything at all, when he went into a room where a little child was, and the child said, "Sit! don't make any noise, the baby is asleep." If you knew anything you reverently tiptoed out, for you knew God was training a mother; and he went on to say that all women were trained for mothers; none more so, none so much perhaps, as teachers.

It was the mother in Miss Mason that most impressed me. I remember the first time that I saw her, when I took my poor frightened little boy in, and I was in almost as deplorable a condition as he, and there we stood at the door trembling and very dejected until we looked up and saw Miss Mason, and she held out both hands and our sorrow was turned into joy and we went in. When the child came home, I asked him if it was very bad, "Did you get along all right?" "Yes, I got along all right." It was just as I thought you. I thought that was the greatest tribute that Miss Mason could have, that a little child in the first day, a bashful frightened child could feel as though he had not been away from his mother.

I have a theory about those who go from our visible sight; it may not be right, but I love it. I think those who go from our visible sight still see us. That may not help all but it helps me. For that reason I do not grieve for those who go because it might make them grieve; but, I do believe and I do hope and I feel very certain that Miss Mason hears and knows that we have come today to give her this meed of regard, and that we are not ungrateful.

"Copy of a letter written by Mrs.
Flora Parks, who sent the poem."

Dear Miss Martin:
It was as if a vision came to me and once more I saw and heard her.
Saw her with the little ones about her—heard her voice influencing all their tender formative years—on to the high womanhood and manhood for which she so surely built. And so I give my vision to you. May it in some feeble way express the love and gratitude of Flora Parks
May 1905.

To The Sweetest and Noblest Builder of Child Character.

In tones full of music and pleading, Came a voice of love to us, Filled with help, strength, high leading—
For the childlike of her great ministry.

Take thou, with the first draught of knowledge, A balsam for every ill—
That shall free thy blood from poison, Make evil to flee, or be still.

Oh, children of freedom and beauty, Come to the wealth of God's store, Draw from its well, deep and holy,
A strength that will last for aye.

Oh, make from it, Might and Power,
And the Love of the undelivered, Take Purity clear as the starshine, And Trust with Hope allied.

And take thou a scorn for th' ignoble, A dependence on thine own lusty brawn,
Be faithful friend of all humbled, Content with the simple, true and strong.

Take Joy in the earth, sun and wind, And Faith in the great Unseen, This thy birthright, oh take it,
On the breast of the Mighty One, lean.

What else the years may bring thee, It is no matter, thy life is no wrong Unpolluted and vital living, Each day a magnificent song.

The winds and the waves shall hush thee,
The stars afflict not the night,
The Father with Love deeply treasured, Offers all to the child's noble right.

So take little ones, from the storehouse The jewels of thought beyond price, And know that in beautiful living, Comes the nearness to God and to Christ.

It is the voice of sweet speaking,
And only is memory left To measure the wealth of her teaching, To pay her the grateful debt.

And I know that somewhere on the great heights Went never neither sorrow nor pain, Her spirit will stand at the doorway,
To welcome her children again.

Flora Parks.

Rev. E. M. Noyes.

One of my friends wears dangling from his watch chain a little black cylinder, not quite so large as the last two joints of the little finger. If you should take it up in your hand and look at it, you would see that it is made of very hard stone, and it is marked with strange looking letters that do not look much like our letters.

It is a little book from Assyria, and it was carved a good many years before Christ was born. They made their books out of stone and their libraries were made out of bricks. I think we should not like to study out of books that were made of bricks they would be pretty heavy to hold.
But there was one advantage, and that was, they lasted. This man is wearing on his watch chain yet that little book, a little cylinder that is written upon with these Assyrian letters. I do not know whether he is learned enough to read it, and I am sure I am not but the book is there and has lasted all these thousand years. Now men write their thought today in books and they last. Two of the speakers who have gone before me have quoted from Mr. Emerson.
Mr. Emerson lives in his books because he wrote great thoughts and thoughts that are inspiring, noble.

We think of him, people remember him all over the world, and are speaking of him every day, just as he has been spoken of here. He has written his name on the thoughts of men.
There are two ways in which people write their names so they last. These old Assyrian kings wrote them in little cylinders, the Roman conquerors wrote them on monuments, people put them on tablets of bronze and marble, and put them up in our cemeteries to make people remember those who are gone, but the man who writes the thought on the life of the world is sure to be remembered when the monument has gone and when the stone has crumbled away.

Now there is one other place to write your name and that is in the heart, and the people who write their names on the hearts, are people who use the best monument. We are here today because we knew and loved Miss Mason and you see Miss Mason wrote her name on the hearts of every child, every set of children, that were in her room. A class would come in and go out from her room. Many of the boys and girls have grown up. My own boy was in her room. I know how he remembered Miss Mason. Her thoughts were written on their hearts, all these boys, and not only the children, but the parents, for Miss Mason used to visit in our homes, Miss Mason was our friend as well as our children's friend and we are educated by our friends, not by books, not by monuments, not by the things that we see and touch and handle, so much as we are educated by our friends. The greatest educational force is the teacher. If you have a teacher that is full of love, inspiration and enthusiasm and is writing her own nature on the hearts of the children, you have the greatest educational force.

President Garfield said that if you had half a dozen boys on one end of a log and President Hopkins on the other, you would have a school. There would be a school whether you had decks and schoolhouse or not. With half a dozen pupils and a loving heart like Miss Mason there would be a school and be a splendid school, no matter where it was. It is the teacher and the few children whom she loved and who loved her and on whose minds and hearts she is writing her lessons, that make a school. That is one thing we have to remember about Miss Mason today. We are writing our names and thoughts on the hearts of the people. What a beautiful thing to us and anybody today that there are so many people here who have known her in this last quarter century; everybody who knew her remembers her with love and with gratitude. What a treasure it is to win remembrance like that, to write one's name upon the heart.

Mr. Parker:
We will ask the children to sing now, and I shall ask them to sing one of Miss Mason's favorite songs, "Father, we thank Thee."

Miss Margaret E. Martin.

I wonder how I ever dared to think that I could speak to you. It came about because I wished, so much that you should know what she was to the little group of teachers who shared her labors, her friendship, in the Rice School. It was my good fortune to teach beside Miss Mason during her whole term of service there.
These were years of unbroken friendship, characterized on her side by the utmost patience and kindness which never failed, and on my side, by respect and admiration and love and trust, which was never betrayed.

Confidence which was never broken.
From the very first, her supremacy was never doubted. She was always the head of the school, always the best teacher, always the one whose influence was most felt, but she bore herself so modestly, was so devoid of self assertion, so careful of the feelings of others, so willing to rejoice in their success, that our admiration for her qualities exceeded our pride in her abilities. In saying this I feel that I voice the feeling of every teacher who ever taught with her in the Rice School. Strangely enough these are now scattered far and wide, if they could hear my words and would criticize, it would be to deplore that I lacked the ability to put into fitting language the love and loyalty she bore her. How could we think of her the loyal? The masters, the Superintendents, the Committee, the parents, know how true she was to us.

The Rice School was a very pleasant place to work in. We were all so friendly, altogether it was like a little family, with Miss Mason at the head, for in her all our friendships centered. No one was ever quite willing to begin school until she had been to Miss Mason and exchanged at least a greeting. And the dear room.
You know its atmosphere. We used to say that over the doorway should be written, "Here dwells peace." One could never go into that room without bringing away something helpful.
You remember the beautiful thoughts Always a sometime during the year, this appeared there "Let us love one another, for our work shall be the sweeter for our love, and still our love be sweeter for our work." I always thought she meant this even more for the teachers than for the children. Here was the antidote, nay the preventive, of all envy or jealousy; if these ever lived, they withered in the atmosphere. In the very last message that she sent to us, for she found that she could not be with us this year, she sent this "Peace and harmony in the dear school, as always and love over all."

The following letter was read from Mr. C. M. Giddard.
I regret very much that it will be impossible for me to be present at the exercises in the Rice School in memory of Miss Mary E. Mason, so that I might personally, from my connection with the school testify very high place which Miss Mason occupied in the esteem of that committee, as Principal of the Rice School, which position she filled so acceptably during her long term of service.

To look into Miss Mason's face was sufficient to inspire confidence in her; to know her personally strengthened that confidence. It was my privilege to be brought into contact with her, as a member of the school committee, in connection with our school matters, and I think the trait of her character that most impressed me was her entire self-forgetfulness. Her whole thought seemed to be given to her pupils whom she loved, to her associated teachers, whose happiness and welfare always were considered ahead of her own and to her life work in which she was so sincerely attached.
Whoever succeeds to Miss Mason's place will have before her the highest ideals and may well be satisfied with her success if she achieves the same place in the estimation of the school board, in the confidence of the pupils and the love of her pupils. I am, Very truly, yours,
C. M. Giddard.

Rev. E. D. Burr, D. D.
It is very difficult adequately to describe a character which has so many noble qualities. Miss Mason was a many-sided. As friend, as teacher, as spiritual mother to many lives, she presents to us a realization of what is possible in the symmetry, perfectness, of a life beautifully lived. It has been very well said this afternoon that to her living was a fine art. We all pay her the largest tribute in thinking not so much of what she has done, not so much of what she has written, as to think in these closing moments of what she was and of Jiu-Jitsu by President Roosevelt's Teacher.

Japan succeeds because of the physica fitness of her soldiers. They practice Jiu-Jitsu, a system of physical culture which makes them giants of strength and endurance.
The instructor of President Roosevelt, who learned all the high art of Jiu-Jitsu in Japan has been induced to reveal all these secrets to the American College of Physical Culture and Jiu-Jitsu, so that the American people may be instructed in the art by a series of photographs, in a manner which is at once com-prehended by the person who receives the lessons, showing in detail, all the movements and leverages which make the Japanese famous.

Whom she learned the art in such perfect humility. As a teacher she received her inspiration from Him who taught, first of all teachers in the world, to teach the beauty, the significance of the child soul. She did not think the child's mind a granary to store facts, or memory, a gallery to be hung with pictures, or army to be furnished with weapons, but she considered the child soul a seed which was to be planted in the ground sown upon by the alighting of the teacher's character. She felt herself responsible to present the atmosphere, sunshine and shower and the soil in which that seed of the child soul should mature, and she felt that if under that influence that child soul grew as it should, it would garner its own facts, it would forge its own weapons and paint its own pictures; therefore, she did not try to live a thought but to find a thought. She did not try to inform her pupils but to form a new life in her pupils. She did not try to project herself upon the pupil, but to enable that pupil to project himself upon the world. Of whom did she learn this? At the feet of Him, called the great Teacher, who was the first to teach there was something so intrinsically beautiful, so sublime, so holy in the soul of a child as that those to whom he said, who were then mature and grown could not be complete in character and in life unless they turned their steps backward to that condition of life which He had defined as childlikeness. So this was her constant appeal to self-expression, beautiful as her sunshine, gentle her fulfilling showers, fertile with nutritious soil of her life in which you children, some of you who are now of mature years, had the privilege of growth. If she were here today I think she would try to lead the patient attention of these very good children by telling them a story, which perhaps would tell all her meaning. The great influence of this life, it seems to me, could be told in that simple story of the legend of the beautiful hand.

A group of young women walking one summer afternoon in the meadows and woods, fell disputing as to which hand was the more beautiful. One had been picking flowers until the tips of her fingers were fragrant with their perfume; another had been plucking berries until they were tinted with the color of the fruit; another had been playing in the spring until her hand was cool and pure with the cleansing of the water; and they disputed as to which was the more beautiful, the hand that was fragrant with the perfume of the flower, or tinted with the color of the berry, or washed with the water, or washed with the water of the spring, but the hand that was reached forth to help and to serve, and as she spoke, her garments became radiant and beautiful, the wrinkles vanished from her face, her hair that had seemed disheveled, became a halo of light and she vanished in the sunset glow, and it seemed as though they had beheld the vision of an angel and a voice that spoke from afar.

We miss the physical presence today but we see a golden light. We see a radiant whiteness and we hear a voice that speaks from a far land and it says to everyone of us today. The most beautiful life that can be lived is a life that is lived in the most perfect service, and you and I know that the voice that speaks to us today is the voice of whose sweet tones we are very familiar, for that voice will never be silent, nor will that life ever end, or that influence ever wane. We do need to look up at the stars, to see if they are there, when we see them reflected in the white waters by our feet; we do need to look up into the heavens to see if God is there, for we see His glory and we hear His voice and we learn His Truth in the lives of those who lived by our side, speaking to us with an eloquence and an impressiveness that only a divine voice can give us out of the fulness of the life she lived with God, out of the deep communion that she had with God, out of the great power of the soul that she derived in the personal presence of God and all that she thought and all that she did, he lived for us, and she lives today in us.

I know that in all the future years, in our quieter hours, if we listen, we may hear that angel voice speaking to us, "Would you live the beautiful life, live the life of perfect service," and this she learned of Him Who knew it came from God and went to God, Who taught to His disciples at His last lesson, that the greatest glory of life was the glory of service. Dear children, from some classes you graduate, from some classes you are promoted; some teachers you will leave, other teachers leave you, but there is one Teacher from whose school we are never promoted, at Whose feet we may always sit, Whom leave us, and that is the Teacher who taught Miss Mason, the sweetest and the best of all that she knew, and we could not give her any higher honor or pay her any higher tribute, than to turn our thought in honor and tribute to Him who taught her what she has been able to teach us.

Mr. Parker. Three weeks from next Tuesday, we shall celebrate Memorial Day again, the great festival day memorializing the patriotism of the great war. A year ago, out yonder, on the green grass, near the Rice School, Miss Mason herself, led her classes in the exercises centered about the flag and so I think it peculiarly fitting at the close of these exercises as a tribute of loyalty to turn toward the flag she loved, as we all rise and stand and sing "America." When we sing you boys and girls will remember that this was done because Miss Mason was good and sweet and noble.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

Questions on legal matters will be answered in this column and names of persons sending queries will be considered strictly confidential. Communications should be addressed to Arthur W. Blakemore, 160 State St., Boston.

Quære 1. I had my watch stolen and the police have located it in a pawnbroker's. I went there and the pawnbroker demanded from me the amount of money he had loaned on it. Must I pay it?

2. I am inclined to think he stole it himself or found it. If either of these suspicions is true would it make any difference? What should a finder do in such a case?

Answer: 1. It is an elementary rule of law that a person who has not any title to an article cannot give one to it, the exceptions to this rule being money and negotiable instruments, such as promissory notes, bills of exchange and checks in certain cases. Hence the pawnbroker had no right to withhold the watch from you and you can either bring an action of replevin by which you can obtain possession of it at once or you can let the pawnbroker keep it and sue him for its value. If you do not wish to sue, custom in Boston requires you to pay the amount the pawnbroker has loaned on it. This custom has no foundation in law and seems to have arisen through an understanding between the pawnbrokers and the police.

2. If the pawnbroker stole it he is criminally liable and you can get back your property. If he found it the case is different. One who finds lost property whose owner is unknown and which is worth less than ten dollars must post notices of the fact and notify the town or city clerk who has a book for this purpose. If it is worth more than ten dollars he must advertise as well as post notices and also have the property appraised. The owner has a year in which to come and claim the goods. Before he can get them however he must pay all reasonable charges for keeping, appraising and advertising and for necessary travel in connection therewith. So in your case you may find that if he actually found it you may have some small sum to pay.

Minstrel Show for Working Boys' Home.

For some weeks past groups of well known young ladies and gentlemen have been noticed assembling in the vicinity of Nonantum Building, Newton. As soon as a "certain person" arrived all sought Nonantum Hall and in a few moments Nutting's troupe were in the midst of minstrelsy.

Some fifty ladies and gentlemen have been rehearsing under J. Clifton Nutting in preparation for a Minstrel Show to be presented by the Ladies Aid Society of St. John's Industrial School, Newton Highlands, on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 18 and 19 of next week in Temple hall, Newtonville.

This show is being staged along novel lines and most favorable comment has been passed by those who have attended the rehearsals. The minstrel front is being changed for a fete day scene on a southern plantation. This affords excellent opportunities for business and everything tends towards a most successful and enjoyable entertainment.

—School sessions began in the new school house on Monday.

—The executive board of the Village Improvement Society met with the President Mr. F. F. Breene on Wednesday evening. The lawn party was discussed.

—Next Sunday at the M. E. church at 10:45 topic "Grace and Glory." At 7 p. m. prelude "Do we need a Watch and Ward Society in Newton?" Sermon topic "The way of the Transgressor is hard."

—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church had a very interesting meeting at the parsonage on Monday afternoon the study being Korea. Mrs. Scott exhibited some photos and many curious from Korea and some interesting papers were read.

—The annual meeting of the Pierian Club was held at the home of Mrs. Titus on Wednesday afternoon. After an interesting program on the various expositions, refreshments were served. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year. President, Mrs. Hemphill; vice president, Mrs. Easterbrook; secretary, Mrs. Child; treasurer, Mrs. Willard.

Auburndale.

—Mr. John J. Armitage, foreman in Melody's livery stable, saved the life of little Alice Long Saturday afternoon at no small risk to himself. A runaway horse, owned by Mr. Charles S. Dennison of Newtonville was coming up Auburn street at a rapid pace just as the four year old child started to cross. Mr. Armitage ran out from the stable and snatching the girl pulled her to one side so that she escaped unhurt. The driver received severe cuts and bruises.

LETTER TO JOS. I. WATERHOUSE, NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

Dear Sir: The way to buy paint is to go by the name. There is a name never seen on sham paint or weak paint or short-measure paint: Devco. There are a hundred different names in paint. Some are sham; some weak; some short-measure; and some all three.

If there is another such paint as Devco lead-and-zinc, we don't know it. There are a few fairly good paints; a few only one Devco. A gallon Devco is worth a gallon-and-a-half of those few.

Mr. Aaron Higgins, of Plainfield, N.J. always used 15 gallons of mixed paint for his house. Last spring he bought 15 gallons of Devco and had 4 gallons left.

Yours truly
F. W. Devco & Co.

WORN OUT?

Are Your Strength and Energy Gone?
If you are discouraged and despondent and wish to die, it is not because everything is black before you. It is simply because your vitality is so low and you are so weak that you have not the courage to face a lifetime.

Excellent physicians have been attracted by similar cases and after making a careful and scientific study of their requirements have compounded a remedy called Vin-Tone, which builds up body and mind in a remarkably short time.

Vitality is what you need and vitality is what Vin-Tone gives.
We tell you of this preparation hoping it may find its way into every home where man, woman or child is suffering from lack of energy.

Vin-Tone can be procured at a very trivial expense and will build up your system as it has thousands of others.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

These reports were received: From Committee on Finance recommending grant of $21,031 for city expenses to June 15: and recommending $500 for instruction of backward children.

From Committee on Public Franchises etc recommending granting petitions of Gas Co. for pole locations in Centre Pl and pole rights through reservoir land Chestnut hill, and passage of ordinance to require junk collectors to wear badges.

Reports of the Committee on Public Franchises recommending granting leave to withdraw on petition of Telephone Co for pole locations on Crafts st and similar action on petition of D.
F. Kearney for wagon licenses: and recommending granting Intelligence

Ellen A. Kelley, Josephine E. Car-belle and Gertrude D. Knapp, carriage license to Jas. W. Martin, wagon license to Cole Williams and for 2 pool tables and 2 alleys to F. T. Ward, were severally accepted.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

On motion of Alderman Weston the order authorizing discontinuance of Newton Centre-Nonantum Square line of cars at Newtonville square on condition of granting certain transfers was taken from the table.

Alderman Weston. The discontinuance of free transfers last year caused considerable excitement, and the Mayor was requested to enforce the rights of the city under a certain agreement made in 1897 providing for five cent fares within the limits of the city. After months of negotiations the Mayor has obtained an agreement with the Company which is embodied in the order now under discussion. While it does not give the city all that we might desire, it brings about a result for which the south side has been contending. This compromise will allow the company to save one car in its Newton Centre business.

Alderman Webster. The running time between Newton Centre and Newtonville square is 14 minutes and if the car is one minute late the passengers will have to wait a long time for the next Lower Falls-Newton, car, while the Waltham line may come right along. Theoretically this plan looks well but practically it amounts to nothing. Why shouldn't this company give transfers on its Waltham cars going east?

Alderman Weston. I understand that the Mayor has endeavored to obtain this privilege but the road absolutely refuses.

Alderman Cabot. I don't understand why they should exempt the Waltham line. If they save one car on the Newton Centre line they ought to be able to afford transfers on the Waltham cars.

Alderman Palmer. It seems to me that we have only one matter before us. We can either pass or reject the present order. An amendment will not be accepted by the company and only the present order should be acted upon.

Alderman Webster. This order practically kills the Homer street line.
We are getting nothing and giving something. It is but a shadow of a transfer that is given at Newtonville square as the cars will not meet there.
The business way is to instruct the City Solicitor to enforce our rights under the agreement and not accept a mess of pottage.

The order was then adopted, 15 yeas Alderman Webster voting nay.

RECESS.

From 8:35 to 8:53 o'clock for committee meetings.
Upon reassembling the report of the Committee on Public Works relative to preparation of new atlas of Newton was received.

An order authorizing Mayor to contract with G. H. Walker Co for a new atlas of Newton was opposed by Alderman Ellis, who asked for information, and City Engineer Farnham was called.

Mr. Farnham. The Bromley Co were asked to prepare an atlas under similar terms as embodied in this order but declined. They have not abandoned their undertaking, but the Walker Co have agreed to the conditions asked by the Mayor and it is for the advantage of the city to accept them.

Alderman Ellis. The other Company have been soliciting subscriptions among the citizens and as this order prohibits any assistance being rendered anyone except the Walker Co I believe we ought to give it more careful consideration in order to protect the rights of persons who have subscribed to the Bromley atlas.

The order was then tabled.
These orders were read and adopted: Granting N. and W. Gas Light Co pole location on Centre place, authorizing permit to N. and W. Gas Light Co to locate poles in private land of city: requesting Committee on Rules to prepare ordinance requiring junk collectors to wear badge.

These orders were read twice and adopted: Granting $21,031 for city expenses to June 15th: taking land for sewer between Walnut st and Omar terrace and authorizing sewer construction in Foster st.

Alderman Ensign then presented the following resolution which was adopted:

Whereas a debate between chosen representatives of Lincoln Memorial University of Cumberland Gap, Tennessee, and the Newton High School has been arranged for the evening of May 22, 1905, in this city:
And whereas Major General Oliver O. Howard, U. S. A., as Managing Director of said University, will be present on that occasion:

Be it resolved: That this board, in behalf of our citizens, desires to extend its cordial greetings to our southern visitors, and to the distinguished soldier accompanying them, And to express its hearty approval of an occasion, unique in the history of our country, which brings together in friendly rivalry the younger generation of the North and South, believing that such a meeting will tend to promote those feelings of county and good neighborhood which are the delight of American citizenship.

North Gate Club Base Ball.

The local interest in base ball has been more pronounced this spring than for many years and the North Gate Club of West Newton has organized a strong nine with Ralph W. Richardson, captain and Arthur M. Manning manager.

The first game was played on Saturday, April 29th at Cabot park, Newtonville with the Railroad Transportation Clerk's Team from Boston. North Gate won by the decisive score of 17 to 4 and played a remarkably good game for so early in the season. The battery work of Ross and Mason, and the batting of Kimball, Field and Sheldon were the features.

On Saturday, May 6th North Gate won from the strong Dorchester Athletic Club by the score of 7 to 2 in a well played match. Ross pitched a fine game for North Gate striking out 14 men and allowing only four hits off his delivery, while eleven hits were made off the Dorchester pitcher. The fieldings and base-running of Chase and the timely home run by Kimball were the features.

On Saturday, May 13, a well played game at Newton Centre with the Revue Club of Chelsea was won by the score of 16 to 8.

Several games have already been scheduled, among them being a match with Allston Golf Club and Riverdale Casino Teams.

Among Women.

The West Newton Women's Educational Club held its annual meeting on Friday, May 12 at 4:30 p. m. in the parlors of the Unitarian church. The meeting was called to order by the Hon. Pres. Mrs. E. N. L. Walton, after which annual reports were read by the recording secretary, the corresponding secretary and the treasurer, Mrs. Anna L. Bailey chairman of the Social Science Committee, Mrs. H. S. Roquemore, chairman of the Education Committee, Mrs. George Byfield, chairman of the Art and Literature Committee, Mrs. Blanche Booth, chairman of the Music Committee, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Lowry, chairman of the Hospitality Committee, and Mrs. H. H. Hunt, chairman of the Reception Committee, read reports showing what had been done during the year.

The election of officers followed resulting as follows: President, Mrs. M. T. Rowe; first vice president, Miss Amelia Davis; rec. sec'y, Miss A. T. Rowe; cor sec'y, Mrs. Henry F. Cate; treasurer Mrs. Josephine Kimball; auditor Miss Jessie Fisher.

After the business meeting a supper was served. The after dinner speeches consisted of traditional stories given by several of the club members.

In the evening an animated library, of which Mrs. Anna L. Bailey was librarian, furnished much amusement. During the evening the club was favored by several songs by Madame Martinez of Boston.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

Questions on legal matters will be answered in this column and names of persons sending queries will be considered strictly confidential. Communications should be addressed to Arthur W. Blake, more, 60 State St., Boston.

Quere: Several years ago I employed an architect to draw plans for a house and he still has the original drawings in his possession. In the absence of any arrangements regarding the ownership of these drawings who is the legal owner of them? J. H.

Answer: The question is in Massachusetts an open one upon which there is little authority anywhere but what authority exists favors the view that the owner pays the architect for his plans and in the absence of agreement is entitled to keep them. A leading English Court has so decided in the face of a custom of architects to keep their plans, the Court speaking of the custom as suicidal and as contrary to reason, good sense and justice. In that case however the architect was discharged before the completion of the building and it might be argued that the court had in mind that state of facts alone and would not have so decided in case the building had been completed and the builders use for the plans had ceased.

It is well not only that men should be brave, good and pure, but that their bravery and goodness shall be recognized by others. We therefore gladly reproduce the following which appeared in the columns of one of the prominent medical publications, and is handed us by a local physician.

"Medical heroes are not rare, though not always properly recognized. A conspicuous example was the late Dr. Albert B. Craig, of Philadelphia. Through his unremitting devotion to a friendless patient with cerebro-spinal meningitis he contracted the disease and died in ten hours, in spite of the best and scientific skill could render. Mr. Craig was in the prime of life and left a young bride of five months. He as fully realized the risk he was running as does a member of a 'sacred death' party in the Japanese army. He braved that risk in the fulfillment of duty."

NO GLOSS CARRIAGE PAINT MADE

A dinner will be given at the Newton Club, Friday evening, May 19th, complimentary to the cast of Quixote the Second, who have finished a most successful three nights' presentation of the opera at Newtonville. Covers will be laid for 40 and dancing will follow the dinner. The following is the cast and those who have been active in promoting the opera:

Mrs. Rainsford H. Griffin, Miss Edith B. Park, Miss Anna F. Neal, and Miss E. Gertrude Johnson, Miss Alice Abbott, Miss Olga Abbott, Miss E. A. Sargent, Miss May Wilcox, Miss Vera Rumery, Miss S. L. Adams, Mr. W. A. Goode, Mr. Hubert W. Pierce, Mr. F. Lincoln Peirce, Mr. A. L. Wakefield, Mr. Paul Revere Knight, Dr. Leslie Naylor, Mr. T. L. Stoddard, Mr. C. L. Pierce, Mr. Hugh Campbell, Mr. E. H. Judkins, Mr. J. B. Bartley, Mr. G. T. Ryan, Mr. P. D. Campbell, Mr. F. A. Wilcox, Mr. W. G. Hambleton, Mr. Dudley Fitch, Mr. Elisha Avery, Mr. Samuel W. French, Mr. H. E. Duncan, Mr. C. A. Washburn, Mr. Charles F. Avery, Mr. Louis R. Gindrat, Mr. William Rogers, Mr. Frank Copeland, Mr. H. H. Cook, Mr. W. L. Wadleigh, Mr. Olaf Ohlson, Mr. Wm. Hickox.

AT Mlle. CAROLINE'S.

Military to be satisfactory must possess these requirements: It must be suitable and becoming, modern and stylish, properly fitted and adapted, light in weight and serviceable, of choice and uncommon materials, well made and reasonable in price; all this with courteous attention and prompt service is what all receive at Mlle. Caroline's 480 Boylston street, in the block of the Brunswick Hotel, Boston.

At the Churches.

Services are held in Grace Episcopal church opposite Farlow Park every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Strangers are always welcome.

There will be a rally of the Junior Christian Endeavor Societies of Newton in the Eliot chapel, tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. Addresses will be made by Rev. George F. Kenningott, of Lowell, State Superintendent of Junior work, and Rev. Franklin S. Hatch acting pastor of Eliot church. Music and exercises by the Juniors. All are cordially invited to attend.

Wherever there is any cleaning or disinfecting to be done this spring nothing will accomplish it so well as Sulpho-Naphthol, which has so thoroughly demonstrated its peculiar adaptability for use about the house, especially as a disinfectant where drainage is dependent upon cesspools and for closets, toilets, urinals, sinks, etc. Disinfect entirely with soaps, powders, etc and use Sulpho-Naphthol. Those who have done so are loud in its praise and say they will never be without it. It accomplishes a twofold purpose—disinfects and cleans. While the imitations on the market may be alike in many respects, yet do not expect the same results, for Sulpho-Naphthol stands without an equal for the numerous purposes it is recommended for.

RECREATION FOR MAY.

Recreation for May presents an entirely different appearance from the old Recreation. Wonderful changes have been made by Dan Beard, the new editor and the magazine is fast giving promise of being the leader of the out-door publications.

The cover design is from a drawing of Canada geese by Lynn Bogue Hunt, and is exceptionally strong and attractive. The leading story is by C. W. Beebe, Curator of Ornithology, New York Zoological Park, and is a comprehensive review of new and interesting facts concerning bird life. The article is magnificently illustrated. Lee Woodward Zeigler, the artist, has written a story on Old Mexico, illustrated by himself and Alden Pierson, a story fascinating because of the keen insight the artist has in the life and manners of the Mexicans. L. B. Spencer, director of the New York Aquarium, tells how to start and run a balanced aquarium, giving interesting facts for the beginner in this charming pastime, illustrated liberally with photographs. Chas. Livingston Bull and Walter A. Stone have correlated in the illustration of a pleasing story on "The Marsh," written by the last named artist. There is a full complement of fishing and hunting stories, and the departments are unusually large and filled with items of interest to the photographer, automobilist, tennis player, traveler and sportsman.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

We are approaching the end of the legislative session of 1905, and doubtless the evening of Saturday, the 27th will find the great and general court prorogued.

When it comes to summing up the work the question may once more be asked: "What has the legislature wrought?" Without entering into that prolific field of research it may be safe to say that fewer mistakes have been made and more good results have been accomplished than in most of the sessions of the past dozen years. Of course, the fault-finder could find fault, that is what he is created for, but the critic, who is a different sort of a being from the fault-finder, would be free to admit that the good accomplished far exceeded that left undone, and that, in the discharge of its duties, the legislature of 1905 has reason to congratulate itself, and the state can say on the whole, "Well done thou good and faithful servant." The general average of intelligence and high mindedness has been found to exceed that of any legislative body since this century came in, and the common purpose to act understandingly has been almost universal. This last mentioned quality takes foremost rank in desirable legislative equipment. Self seeking and pernicious legislation will generally fall before the legislative interrogation point, when intelligently applied, and in this respect, it may be reasonably said that the present legislature has been presenting its strongest capacity. The Commonwealth has suffered much from careless and unintellectual legislation in years gone by, until the time has fully come when it is necessary to undo rather than to do, to tear down rather than to add to in legislative construction. Much comment is made in the length of the session and much of that comment is made ignorantly and with a foolish purpose not to inform on the true condition. The flood-gates are open each year, then the public expects the legislature is to clear away the debris without regard to the condition prevailing. To be sure, much time is thought to be wasted every year, but that is a fixed condition in legislative experience. The processes are necessarily slow in creation, and the legislative department of government is controlled by the rules of creation.
Men must have time to think and observe when they enter the field of legislative creation; architectural plans and estimates are not submitted to a legislative body and the result of its deliberations are eventually to become the law of the land. The judges in the Court ask for time before rendering their decision on created law, why should not legislators take time in the creation of law? The end of the present century is more likely to see legislative bodies in almost perpetual session rather than to see them contracted in point of time. The quality of Massachusetts legislation, as compared with that of other states where ninety days session prevails, proves the wisdom of the absence of the time limit.

The succession, as it is sometimes called, the inheritance tax, had its innings in the House last week, and incidentally, one of the best speeches of this session was made upon that subject, or in connection with the debate, by Representative Walker of Brookline. It should be said in passing, that Mr. Walker demonstrated in that debate that he is undoubtedly among the five best speakers in the House, and it may also be said of him that he is among the foremost members of that body who may be counted as a valuable legislator. Men may shine in one capacity or another without being properly considered valuable legislators, consequently, it is much to say of Mr. Walker that he is a valuable legislator, for he possesses qualities rarely to be found in public life, and much to be envied by less fortunate officials.

The question about the Cotton 'contaminated money' was discussed before the Joint Ways and Means Committee last week, and the proceedings were interesting to those who were in attendance at the hearing. Mr. Mayberry, represented the famous John B. Cotton, who was described as a distinguished lawyer in Washington who had given up his life to recovering from the grasp of the merciless government under which we exist, certain sums of money for the different states of the Union, states that had advanced the money to aid the said merciless government when she fell into serious trouble forty years ago. This self-sacrificing task was undertaken by the Washington attorney for love of the sovereign states and for compensation ranging from 10 to 25 per cent of the sums recovered. So consecrated has been the life of Mr. Cotton to this task and so absorbed has he been in his work that any offer to become attorney-general of the country which may have been urged upon him has fallen upon deaf ears. So faithful has he been to the trust confided in him by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that he has risked life and limb in diligently guarding the warrant which the government handed to him to be transmitted to Governor Bates, and he still hangs on to that little piece of paper as though his very life depended upon the tenacity of the Krip.

The argument of Attorney-General Parker before the Committee was one of the ablest presentations of a case, heard in the State House in a long time. He prefaced his remarks with the opinion that the question involved in the matter before the Committee was one which should be tried in the Courts, yet he signified his entire willingness to recite the facts to the Committee. Mr. Parker thereupon proceeded to arrange the so-called Cotton claim before the Committee in a masterful presentation of its history. According to the Attorney-General, and the facts, he seemed to be borne out in his claim that there was nothing for Mr. Cotton to do when he received the warrant from the Treasury Department, except to bring it to Massachusetts and to turn it over to Governor Bates. Everything which happened before and everything which had happened since points to the correctness of that conclusion. The dignified attitude of Attorney-General Parker is entirely consistent with a proper conception of the majesty of a sovereign state.
Mr. Parker asserted that he had never for a moment denied the contract, either its justice or the amount of compensation it provided, he had, however, contended from the first that a proper comprehension of the circumstances surrounding the case must inevitably lead any fair minded man to see that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should not dicker with any individual over a money matter in which the individual had first deliberately violated the terms of the contract. We are now to see if the lawyer's lien has more strength than the power of the sovereign state.
It is safe to predict that Mr. Cotton will hand over to the Commonwealth the famous warrant and that then the Commonwealth will liquidate her indebtedness, as she always has.

Last Sunday the Boston Herald, in its column devoted to legislative matters, made a curious mistake which came pretty near being a full sized blunder. In commenting on the outing given by Representative Walker to the Joint Ways and Means Committee, the reporter said that Mr.
Walker was House Chairman of that Committee, and went on to say that during his service in that office he had made his influence felt to an unusual extent. The writer said that no Chairman of this Committee in many years had kept such a close watch of finance, that he had suggested many changes in the method of doing things in the auditors office, particularly in its relation with the Ways and Means Committee which had been adopted. Now, a compliment, to be effective, must be true.
The fact is that Mr. Ward of Buckland is the House Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and all that the reporter said of Mr. Walker can be applied to Mr. Ward and be correct. Mr. Walker would undoubtedly be an efficient Chairman if he should at any time be selected to that position but it is hardly fair, nor is it extremely bright to put the Brookline man in the Chair which has been occupied by Mr. Ward from the beginning of the session. The article must have been written by some one not over and above familiar with State House affairs. That is not unusual with Boston papers.

"Spending the summer on Nasha-wena" would be an attractive announcement in which to refer to a States Prison convict if the proposed site for the old house of retention at Charlestown should be decided upon.
Of course there was little of practical suggestion at the hearing upon that subject given by the Ways and Means Committee last week. Poetry does not add strength to prison bars, neither does farming under guard detract from the desire to inhabit the country that is afar off on the part of a man serving time. However, there is much to be said in favor of the proposition to take one of the islands of the sea for dwelling place for those who are spending their lives at the expense of the state. The Indian word of Nasha-wena is supposed to mean in English "don't go."

GARDENING WITH ECONOMY.

dahlias and summer bulbs, go right to the Shady Hill Nursery Co., 44 Broad St. Boston. Their stock is
is kept in cellars. For 25 years they have been the leaders as to good honest stock and low prices, and no other
plans for landscape and garden plant-
ing. Their catalogues are unequalled,
and you save at least one third by
writing for their special rates.

LETTER TO A. H. DRESSER,

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

Dear Sir: But few of the men who sell the hundred different paints in the market know much about them.
All Devco agents have a state chemist's certificate telling just what it's made of; they know a good deal, not only about Devco but the rest; we see that they do. We buy every paint, that has any sale and analyze it. Our agent finds out all about it.
When we know what a paint is made of, we know how it will act; we know how far it goes, and how long it wears.

Devco is the standard; call it 100.
The best of the rest is about 75; the worst about 25; the rest are between.
But the men, who sell them, don't know any better. They know what the maker tells them. That is: they know that he tells them. They don't know whether he tells them the truth or not.

The business is not conducted on knowledge; the less they know, the more comfortable they are.

Yours truly

F. W. Devco & Co.

During the months of July and August of the past two years The Boston Traveler sent hundreds of poor children from the crowded tenement districts of Boston to the country, where they romped and played in the fields, enjoying to their utmost the fresh air and sunshine and pure food of the farms. Country homes in all parts of New England were opened to this deserving philanthropy, and the good that was accomplished is incalculable.

It is proposed this year to continue this work on a much larger scale.
More homes will be opened and more children will be made happy. Can not some reader of this paper aid in the work by caring for a child for a week during July and August? The Travel-

ATTRACTIVE SUMMER NOOKS.

GOOD PLACES FOR VACATION IN VERMONT AND AROUND LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

The Central Vermont Railway Company will in a few days issue a fascinating summer book enlarged in scope and with even more illustrations than the book of last year offered.
The pictures of Vermont scenery are lovely, indeed, and show many of the attractive nooks on the shores and islands of Lake Champlain and in the Green Mountains, places where tourists may spend delightful days of rest and happiness. All of the scenes are from camera pictures, and therefore true to life. Six cents in stamps will secure this pretty book, which includes a list of the best hotels and boarding houses in the state and information concerning the popular haunts of fish and game. Address

Literary Notes.
 Pearson's Magazine for June presents as its leading article the first in an interesting series entitled "The Profession of Getting Hurt." The author, Mr. Theodore Waters, spent five months visiting the various big cities, where he unearthed among public corporations and among the various municipal heads a most amazing state of affairs, showing how annually millions of dollars are "grafted" by this brand new class of fakery. "New York's River Tunnelers," by A. W. Rolker, tells vividly of the difficulties and dangers encountered by the engineers and the men who are boring through the mud and slime, sixty feet beneath the waters of the East River. "Roosevelts' First Lesson in Statecraft," by S. Addison Wolf, tells of the cowboy days of our president, the most talked of person in the world, and how he fought against lynching. Sterling Heilig contributes a bright, interesting biographical article on Louise Michel, Daughter of the Commune who died recently. "Great Fights with Insects" and "What America Spends on Yachting" the latter by Arthur F. Aldridge, the yachting authority and the personal friend of Sir Thomas Lipton. The "Self Supporting Home" series and nine short stories by well known authors complete the contents of the June number.

Tremont Theatre—Raymond Hitchcock and his brilliant supporting cast in "The Yankee Consul" will begin the second and last week of their return engagement at the Tremont Theatre on Monday, May 22d. This engagement is entirely too brief, and there will be many regrets that it could not be extended indefinitely. It can truthfully be said that no comic opera of recent years has gained such a firm hold upon public favor as this merry musical satire. Many reasons can be advanced for the furore created by "The Yankee Consul." In the first place, the words are written in Henry M. Blossom, Jr.'s best vein, and the lyrics have a jingle to them worthy of W. S. Gilbert when that brilliant writer and Sir Arthur Sullivan were at the zenith of their fame. The music is also delightfully catchy, and the scenic effects are veritable triumphs of stage realism. Then,

Leslie, Bob Dailey and Company, in one of the most mirth-provoking sketches seen in the varieties, entitled, "Going Abroad;" Reno and Richards, comedy acrobats, than whom there is none more clever; Will F. Denny, a pleasing descriptive vocalist; Otto Brothers, German dialect comedians; the LaVine Cimaron trio comedy acrobats and dancers, and Delphino and Delmora, grotesque musicians. Spessard's Bears have been engaged for the amusement of the children. The Biograph will show a new and interesting list of motion pictures.

again, Mr. Hitchcock's supporting cast in one of the strongest and most capable ever seen in a comic opera.

The Newton Vacation Week will begin its work in June, and its efficiency during the coming year will depend largely on the patronage given to the sale to be held May 26th in Y. M. C. A. hall. For the information of those who do not know its object, it may be said, that it is an entirely unorganized effort to give quietly, a little summer sunshine and cheer to overworked, tired out people in our own city, whose means will not permit them to assume the expense themselves. In many instances, the sum given is simply sufficient to pay travelling expenses for a visit to friends or relatives who will gladly entertain them. In one case, the money pays the rent, during the month of August, of an honest, working woman, whose means of support fails, almost entirely in summer, when wealthy people are away. Last year, two families were helped in bearing the funeral expenses of loved ones, and thus saved the necessity of appealing to the City for aid. Twelve tired women enjoyed outings of a week or more, returning home with renewed vigor and courage to their work; seen families, mothers, with their little children, spent delightful days at seashore or park; days, to which they look backward with delight, and forward with anticipation. The guests at the Newton Home for Aged People depend on the annual gift from the fund to increase the extremely moderate allowance granted by the Home for electric rides; many pleasant picnics have been enjoyed by shut-ins and shut-outs, and by the Pomroy Home children, who thoroughly appreciate the delights of an afternoon on the grounds of one of our generous citizens, and not less their conveyance to and fro, when they ride seven in a carriage.

This is merely an outline of the work done by the fund. Does it pay? If so, give it your aid, either by contributions or articles for the sale, sent to 89 Walnut Park or by your patronage on the afternoon of May 26th at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Thomason. An investigation led them to force an entrance and Mr. Thomason was found unconscious in the tenement above, where he lived alone. Gas was escaping from the gas range in the kitchen. He was taken to the Hospital where death took place the following day.

—Mr. Thomason was about 57 years of age and had kept a shoe store in this village for many years. He was unmarried. There is a theory that he committed suicide, following the recent deaths of his mother and sister and a fire in his store, but the physicians maintain that he was overcome with a stroke of paralysis. He is survived by a married sister who resides in Attleboro. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2:45 in the Newton Cemetery chapel.

STUFFED

The Mattress of the Present and the Future.

EVERY other mattress in the world is stuffed—hair, cotton or feathers—jammed in at the open end of the tick. That's why lumps and holes soon cause restless nights. Each OSTERMOOR is built not stuffed. Handlaid sheets of downy softness, each full size, are carefully built within the tick. It is vermin-proof. An occasional sun bath is all it requires. The tick can be taken off and washed when soiled.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Death of City Treasurer, Seth A. Ranlett.

Causes Special Session of the Board—Resolutions Adopted.

A special meeting of the board of Aldermen was held Monday evening to take action on the death of Major Seth A. Ranlett, city treasurer and collector of taxes.

Vice President Carter presided and Aldermen Bishop, Bosson, Bowen, Brown, Cabot, Doherty, Ellis, Ensign, Hunt, Palmer, Riley, Stone, Underwood, Weston and White were present.

After the call for the meeting had been read the following communication from the Mayor was received.

To the Board of Aldermen Gentlemen:

It is with a keen sense of a great personal loss that I officially announce to you the death of the City Treasurer, the late Major Seth A. Ranlett, on Sunday morning last.

While a service of nine years as a public official of Newton is not long as compared with the honorable records of many of our officials, it has been sufficient to gain for Major Ranlett the increasing confidence and respect of all with whom he was officially associated. To the discharge of the duties of this important civil office, he brought not merely a splendid record as a brave and able officer in the Civil War, but also the fine spirit of the soldier which is without deviation in its loyalty to the call of duty, and fears nothing, save dishonor.

Few of us realize the large amounts of money which have passed through the treasury in the past nine years, all of it faithfully accounted for. Few of us realize the annoyances and temptations which are the daily lot of a collector of taxes. It is to the honor of this man that this disagreeable duty was done honestly and efficiently and without fear or favor. As has been recently so well said, such a public official has created a place for himself which no one else can fill. You may find his successor, and he in time may find his own way, and in his own time, create a place for himself equally enviable but the place which the Major created and ennobled by his patient continuance in well doing has forever become a part of his own life and no man can take it from him.

The funeral services of the deceased will take place at his home 10 Putnam street, West Newton at 2 p. m. on Tuesday next.

I recommend that your board take such action as may seem appropriate to show not only our own sorrow and the sorrow of our citizens, but also our appreciation of the character and public service of Major Ranlett and our sympathy for his bereaved family.

Respectfully submitted,

Alonzo R. Weed, Mayor.

Alderman Bishop. Since our last meeting the city has lost a tried and true, a faithful and able servant, Major Seth A. Ranlett. It seems to me that in the few times when I had the pleasure to meet him, the keynote of his whole character, of his life work was indicated by the badge which he was entitled to wear in his buttonhole, that of the Loyal Legion, standing for something that none of us have ever had the opportunity of working or fighting for and it may please God, none of us may ever be called upon to save the country from internal or foreign peril. In the papers this morning this was said—

"Major Seth A. Ranlett was born March 18, 1840. In 1861 he joined the Fifth Regiment, M. V. M. after its return from Bull Run in anticipation of its return to the front. As the command was not sent south he enlisted in the 36th Mass. Volunteers in July 1862 joining Company B of Charlestown, known as the Warren Platoon. He served until mustered out on account of physical disability in 1864 having been promoted to be adjutant of the regiment by special recommendation of Gen. Burnside after the battle of Fredericksburg. He was in the armies of the Potomac, of the Ohio and the Tennessee."

If Major Ranlett had never done any more and had stopped there, it would have been an honorable career and a life well done.

Just as he was entering manhood the call came for troops and he served until incapacitated for further duty.

In his house about three months ago I saw over the door-way a sword which he told me he carried through eight of the southern states and as I spoke to him of the honor which I felt it was to any man to have served in the army of the republic he said "Yes, but God only knows what a sorrow it would be to those of us who fought there in the sixties to see the sword of this nation drawn again in war."

He stood for what was right, for what he believed to be true, and he was ever faithful to his trust and now that he has gone across the river there are few of us who cannot envy him the honor which he has earned here.

I present the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, Seth A. Ranlett, late adjutant of the 36th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, and for nine years treasurer of the City of Newton, died at his home in Newton on the 21st day of this month.

RESOLVED that the citizens of Newton, through the Board of Aldermen desire to place on perpetual record their appreciation of his sterling qualities as a man, as a citizen and as a public servant. A son of Massachusetts, he volunteered at the age of twenty one for the defence of the Union, and for four years fought in the armies of the Potomac, of the Ohio and of the Tennessee. At the close of the war, he returned to business life and in 1896 was elected Treasurer of the City of Newton. Of courteous bearing, of entire independence and self confidence, dignified, yet modest and affable, and possessed of sound common sense and good judgment he gained and held the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact. He leaves behind him the reputation of a brave soldier, of a true citizen and of an able and efficient servant of the city, of upright and spotless integrity.

RESOLVED that these resolutions be entered on the records of this board and that a copy be sent to the family of Major Ranlett.

Alderman Ensign. In rising to second the resolution I would like to say a word in commemoration of Major Ranlett. Since I have been in the Board I have been thrown in contact a good deal with Major Ranlett and I have always found him courteous, patient and ever alive to the interests of the City. He knew what his duties were and he always maintained his rights under what he believed to be his duty. I always felt that we were safe in having such a man to conduct the business of the City. There have been some important matters coming before us in the Committee on Claims and I have always found him to be courteous in dealing with these matters, at the same time maintaining his rights as City Treasurer and looking out for the interests of the City. He did what he believed was his duty, something remarkable for many men would think that a little waiver or yielding would result in no loss to the City but not so with Major Ranlett, he was true and it is going to be hard to replace him.

I think the City of Newton is fortunate in having so many good men to fill these responsible positions, and they are doing it quietly and well and when one drops out it causes sorrow and loss and their lives will shine forth in the City's history.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

In reply to questions by Alderman Hunt, City Solicitor Slocum gave his opinion that the board could only fill the vacancy in a permanent manner.

A recess was then taken for an informal conference and upon reassembling, on motion of Alderman Bishop, a committee of three was appointed to consider and report at the next meeting of the board upon filling the vacancy in the office. Aldermen Brown, Ellis and Hunt were appointed.

On motion of Alderman Cabot the President was authorized to appoint a committee to represent the board at the funeral.

And at 8:35 p. m. the board adjourned.

Oslerized.

"We're all useless at 40"—Dr. Osler.

I hear the cock-a-rowin' In the barn across the way; Come, rouse yourself Maria, For 't's near the break of day. The time has come for me to rest, I'm nearly forty-four.

A great and wise and learned man Says I can work no more.

There's the wood to split for kindlin', And the kitchen fire to build When you get the breakfast started, Then the woodbox may be filled; The ashes must be sifted, too, But that's a little chore.

A great and wise and learned man Says I can work no more.

Then don't forget to feed the calf, I hear it now a-cowin', So hurry up, and you'll get through If you just keep a-go-in'.

And when you pass the henhouse Throw some corn upon the floor, A great and wise and learned man Says I can work no more.

What's that you say "you're forty-eight"? Pah! there you're wrong again! The women they don't count at all, He's a talkin' to the men.

'Tis a most provokin' pity That I didn't know before, A great and wise and learned man Says I can work no more.

Wish I'd known this four years ago But what's the use of wishin'? I'll sit down and eat my breakfast, Then I guess I'll go a-fishin'. Put me up a lunch, Maria And I'll eat it on the shore.

A great and wise and learned man Says I can work no more.

Japan succeeds because of the physical fitness of her soldiers. They practice Jiu-Jitsu, a system of physical culture which makes them giants of strength and endurance.

The instructor of President Roosevelt, who learned all the high art of Jiu-Jitsu in Japan has been induced to reveal all these secrets to the American College of Physical Culture and Jiu-Jitsu, so that the American people may be instructed in the art by a series of photographs, in a manner which is at once comprehended by the person who receives the lessons, showing in detail, all the movements and leverages which make the Japanese famous.

We will send one FREE lesson to any one who is interested; we will furnish references from the best people in Boston and elsewhere, including trainers, professors of the leading universities in the United States, doctors, lawyers, etc.

Lincoln Memorial University of Cumberland, Tenn., who have been our guests during the past week have given them during their brief stay.
Saturday evening a dinner was tendered the officers at the Newton club, covers being laid for fourteen: Hon.
S. L. Powers, Col. A. M. Ferris, Col. J. G. White, Col. E. H. Haskell, Commander W. T. Shepherd, Adj. W.
W. Sweetland of the G. A. R., Hon.
E. L. Pickard, A. C. Walworth, E.
C. Adams and W. S. Slocum as hosts and Gen. O. O. Howard, Pres. A. L.
Stooksbury, Trustee E. O. Achorn and Trustee A. L. Seligman as guests.After dinner a smoke talk was held in the Assembly hall of the club which was well filled with members and invited guests.Vice President G. P. Bullard presided and addresses were made by Mr. Achorn, Dr. Stooksbury and Gen.
Howard.Mr. Achorn said that the Herald recently credited him with being the originator of the idea of bringing the rising generation of north and south into friendly rivalry with each other, but if there is any credit due him it comes not as an individual, but rather as a citizen of Newton, and as part of the effort the club is making to give recognition to Lincoln University.Dr. A. L. Stooksbury, president of the Lincoln Memorial University, described it as an institution founded for the mountain people of the central South. He spoke of the veneration in which Lincoln is held all over the world, and then told of the hardships which many a young man and young woman in the South has to suffer in order to obtain an education. At the Lincoln Memorial University, said he, we have a farm school where we raise all we consume. We need your sympathy and aid and come to you with outstretched hands and open hearts, telling you that the prejudice, the misrepresentation and the malice of the South has been swept to the chapel house, and that in place of it, truth, loyalty and good-fellowship are now extended to you.Gen. Howard was welcomed with tremendous cheering. He said he has been laboring for nine years at the Lincoln Memorial University, in order not to be chloroformed after his retirement. In doing so he began, as it were, a new life.Gen. Howard told about the country in which the university is located—of its log huts, its large families, and the number of Howards to be found among them not related to himself.
Stories of the war followed, with anecdotes of McClellan, Sickles, Johnson, Lee and Butler, the latter's love of justice being emphasized.Many who attended the meeting at the Newton Club were present at Channing church Sunday morning when President Stooksbury and Maj.
Gen. Howard were present. The front of the church was decorated for the occasion with American flags and the quartette rendered appropriate selections. President Stooksbury gave a history of the founding of the Lincoln Memorial University, spoke of its aims and of the work it was doing. Gen. Howard followed with a bright, breezy address descriptive of the region about Cumberland Gap and the condition of the white people among the Tennessee mountains.
Rev. Mr. Hudson was in charge of the service and at its close many of those present shook hands with the two gentlemen. Gen. Howard also spoke to the children of the Sunday school.The interest in the debate between the high school boys and the students of the Lincoln Memorial University had become so wide spread that the result was a crowded hall at the Newton High school, Newtonville, on Monday evening. Mayor Weed presided and introduced the speakers and with him on the platform were Headmaster E. C. Adams, Mr. S. Warren Davis, who acted as timekeeper, and Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard. The exercises opened with singing under the direction of Mr. H. M. Walton. The debate followed and while the Newton boys made the most of their side it was evident that the three young southerners, having the strongest argument, were meeting them at every point. Seldom has a more closely contested debate been held in this vicinity and the result was awaited with much interest. The debated proposition was "Resolved, that the technical and industrial schools are of more value to this country than the classical institutions."The affirmative was taken by Harold H. Burton, West Newton, Roy E. Boynton, Newton, Stuart Rand, Newton Centre, and the negative by R. F. Patterson, Cumberland Gap, Tenn., Donald Williams, French Broad, Tenn.; T. C. Hale, New Hill, Va. The preliminary addresseswere 12 minutes long, and the speeches in rebuttal eight minutes.Harold H. Burton opened the affirmative argument with a sketch of the progress of civilization since the middle ages, contending that the immense strides which the modern world has shown in applied science are due to the technical and scientific schools. These schools, he said, strive to broaden the foundation of education. The problem is not how to separate the classical from the scientific studies, but how to supplement general culture by such a training in the applied sciences as shall make the useful of more importance than the ornamental.R. F. Patterson asserted that our captains of industry are in many instances college-bred men, and that all our institutions owe their existence and perpetuity to classical learning.
Ethical, moral, religious and political training, he said, as received in the classical schools is immeasurably superior in intrinsic value to the training given in the technical and industrial schools. The technical school exists to make application of the ideas learned in the classical school. It is a mistake to suppose that the latter teaches only Latin and Greek. The classical training is necessary to that imaginative faculty on which all achievements in the technical field depend.Roy E. Boynton traced to technical and scientific training a civilization which, he said, lifts our own time immeasurably above all previous periods. It is this training which more than any other secures social equality and economic prosperity.
There is a limit to the number of purely literary gentlemen a nation can support. Consider France and its classical training then look at Germany, whose success must be referred to the industrial value of scientific research and the fostering care of technical education for the people.Donald Williams reminded his audience that Greece had no technical schools and that Archimedes did not have any training in a scientific institution. It is imagination, he said, which has revolutionized the course of the liberal arts, and imagination cannot be promoted in a school of technology. Neither the man who drew lightning from the clouds nor the man who sent a message around the world in less than a minute was a professor of technology or agriculture. Who shook the throne of George III? Patrick Henry and Sam Adams, or the inventor of dynamite? Would you compare the work of Harvard University with that of all the technical schools of the world?
What names can you place alongside those of Oliver Wendell Holmes, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Phillips Brooks? What technical graduate could take the place of Theodore Roosevelt?Stuart Rand urged that while classical training had and has its value, that value in relation to science training has changed. He denied that technical training neglected ethical considerations, and said it was, on the contrary, the most potent factor for binding together the nations of the world.T. C. Bales finally urged the need of the people of Tennessee in favor of the argument for classical training.
The materialistic forces, he said, must be controlled by spiritual agencies, or power will pass from us as a people. We need ideals and consecrated sentiments more than we need dollars and cents.The judges were the Hon. Samuel L. Powers of Newton, Edward H.
Clement and the Rev. Reuben Thomas of Brookline. In awarding their decision to the speakers in the negative, they expressed the pleasure it had given them "to find that culture is not confined to this locality." During the interval while the judges were in conference Gen. Howard gave interesting reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln and of the Tennessee people and their country.THAT BEAUTIFUL GLOSScomes from the varnish in Devco's

The passing away of a man who has given a decade of a mature life to the zealous and able performance of duty as a city official, cannot fail to attract and hold the public attention to an unusual degree. In the death of Major Raullet, the late city treasurer, the city loses a most valuable official; one whose conscientious devotion to what he considered his duty was so keen as to often lead to the verge of popular disfavor, and yet he was unswerving and untiring course. A devotion to duty which held that the city's interests were higher and more important than his own and his fidelity to his trust was never questioned.

In early manhood, the call of duty found him ready to offer his life for his country, and late in life, he was equally ready to sacrifice his own inclinations for the public weal.

He has made an enviable record in public office, characterized by faithful, honest and painstaking work. A record which will stand the test of thorough examination and reveal the character of a true citizen and an ardent patriot.

Rev. J. T. Stocking Called.

At a meeting held at Central church, Newtonville, last Friday evening it was voted unanimously to call to the vacant pastorate Rev. J. T.
Stocking of Bellows Falls, Vermont.
It is understood that he will accept and will assume his duties in the autumn. Early last fall the sub committee on Pulpit Supply had their attention directed to the pastor of the Congregational church in Bellows Falls, Vermont, and three members of the standing committee visited him.
Although not hearing him preach a regular sermon they were so impressed with the power of the man that the committee approached him with reference to the possibility of his coming to Central church. At that time, with his work for the winter arranged for, and certain local matters, he felt his duty to attend to, Mr.
Stocking declined to consider the matter. In the spring when circumstances seemed more favorable negotiations were renewed. Three other members of the Standing Committee went to Bellows Falls and heard him preach and conduct his Bible class in the Sunday school. The same favorable impression was received and arrangements were made so that the Standing Committee, as a complete body, in addition to some seventy members heard him preach at the Waltham Congregational church April 30th.
This preliminary action resulted so favorably that the supply committee reported unanimously to the Standing Committee which also made a unanimous recommendation to the church that the call be extended to Mr.
Stocking. Rev. J. T. Stocking was born in New York state April 19th 1870 and was graduated from Amherst College in 1895. He was teacher of English and elocution at the Lawrenceville School, New Jersey, for three years and graduated from Yale Divinity school in 1901 at the head of his class, receiving the Dwight scholarship. A year of graduate study at Yale followed and nearly another year was spent abroad in travel and study at the University of Berlin under the celebrated Dr. Harmack and other men of equal note.
He was for nearly three years assistant pastor of the Church of the Redeemer in New Haven, Conn., and while there was the lecturer on Missions at the Yale Divinity School.
For the past two years he has been pastor of the Bellows Falls church.
He is considered a broad minded man, a deep thinker, an eloquent preacher and a good organizer especially among the young people. He was married October 21st, 1903 to Miss Grace C. Porter, daughter of Mr.
Joseph Porter, a prominent citizen of New Haven, and they have one daughter born last spring. Rev. Mr.
Stocking becomes pastor at a salary of $3,000 per year and an annual vacation of six weeks.

Funeral of Col Farquhar

At his late residence on Pembroke street Saturday morning at 11 o'clock occurred the funeral of Col. David W.
Farquhar. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends among them being representatives from the Phillips Exeter Alumni Association, the Hunnewell Club of Newton, Middlesex Club, Newton Club, Newton Monday Evening Club, Norfolk Club, Papyrus Club, Massachusetts Charitable Association, Association, Scott's Charitable Society, Winslow Lewis Lodge, F. A. M. Newton Royal Arch chapter, Newtowne chapter S.
A. R., and other organizations and societies with which Col. Farquhar had been identified. The floral tributes were numerous and of beautiful design.

The Rev. F. S. Hatch of the Eliot church conducted the services, and selections were rendered by the church quartet. The body was taken to Holliston for burial, where Rev.
Dr. F. N. Peloubet of Auburndale was in charge of the committal service.

Memorial Day

The program for next Tuesday includes the decoration of the graves of soldiers in the morning by Chas.
Ward Post 62 as in former years.

At 11:30 the comrades report to Commander Shepherd at the armory in Newton where lunch is to be furnished on invitation of Mr. John Flood.

At 1:15 p. m. the Post forms at Belmont Park reporting to Col. Isaac F. Kingsbury, Adjutant General.
The Chief Marshal, Congressman John W. Weeks has his headquarters at the Hunnewell Clubhouse and the officers of his staff and associate members of the Post report at that place to Col. W. L. Sanborn, Chief of Staff.

The procession moves at 1:30 in this order:

THE PARADE.
Platoon of Police, Chief Marshal,
Adjutant General,
Chief of Staff, Aids and Associate Members, Chas. Ward Post 62, trude Gass, President.

Post 62, Drum Corps, High School Regiment, Major F. M. Green, commanding.
His Honor Mayor Alonzo R. Weed and City Government, in carriages.

The column moves promptly after formation, passing in review before his Honor the Mayor and the City Government on Church St., corner of Centre St., thence via Centre St., Commonwealth Ave., Kenwood Ave., Ashton Ave., Homer St. and Walnut St. to the Newton Cemetery, where the usual Memorial Exercises take place at the monument, after which the procession passes through Walnut St. and Elm Road to the grounds in the rear of the Newton High School, where evening parade is held.

After this ceremony, the invited guests under the escort of Post 62 proceed through Otis and Walnut Streets, to Temple Hall, for dinner.

The Post has accepted invitations to attend church service Sunday morning at the Baptist Church, Newton, and a patriotic service at the Auburndale Congregational Church, at 4 p. m. of that day.

Mock Trial

Odd Fellows' Hall, West Newton, was crowded with members and friends of Tennyson Rebekah Lodge last Tuesday evening the occasion being a mock trial which was a part of the first session of the Court of Common Squealers. After some most remarkable proceedings Chick N.
Kleptomaniac, Mr. Henry Tule, was pronounced guilty of stealing a chicken from Hans Snyder McGinty, Mr.
Charles F. Dow. The Court officers in the case were: Judge, Harvey C.
Wood; District Attorney, John Reed; Clerk, E. A. Wood; Crick, Fred B.
Colligan; Stenographer, Mrs. Florence A. Newell; Sheriff, Lester C.
Cushing; Attorney for defendant, Chas. M. Kelle; wife of Hans, Mrs.
Agnes A. Weeks; sister of Hans, Mrs.
Agnes Parsons; wife of Chick, Mrs.
M. M. Beardsley. The witnesses were Mrs. Sara Reed, Mrs. Susie Trowbridge, Miss Nellie Barlow, Mrs.
Theresa Fewkes and A. F. A. G.
Libby. The jury consisted of 12 members of the Lodge and there were 14 other members of the McGinty family present. Many jokes and puns were given and the trial was a great success both from an artistic and financial standpoint.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

The legislative mirage makes its appearance annually about the middle or the last of May, and is generally sufficiently deceptive to allure most members of the General Court, including both presiding officers leading them to think that the oasis of legislative life is just before them when in reality they are only looking at a picture on the sky.

Adjournment was fixed in the minds of all, for Saturday of this week, but the same old tag ends seem likely now to hold the Court over two weeks, if not longer, and keep the members guessing, while the prognosticators are keeping open the forms as they delay making their final calculation before they go to press.

At this writing, Monday the 22nd the matters that are likely to block the legislature are the Cambridge Subway, the Soldiers' Bounty Bill, the Cotton hold-up, the determination of the State Tax, the Brigham-Lomasney Charity Bill, offered today, and two or three vetoes that are likely to come in. Of course, as the Subway proposition is now admitted the proposition cannot possibly take place Saturday night and it may be the middle of June before the final farewells are said, for the publication and holding of the public hearings on the important Cambridge Subway, together with the report of possible amendments, with the debates, will take time. The events likely to occur between this hour and adjournment, will be of momentous interest and make the closing the most attractive of what has on the whole, been a rather monotonous session. The Bounty Bill and the Cotton Claim are likely to stir up a good deal of bad blood for the contentions are between men who have got their dander up and from now on mean business and a plenty of it.

The passage of the Natick Bill today, over the veto of the Governor, by almost a unanimous vote in the House and a vote in the Senate of 30 to 5 was marked by a degree of haste and unanimity that is not often observed, and signified two existing conditions, first, the popularity of the Natick member of the House, Mr.
McManus, and second, the evident direction of the wind as to the coming Democratic candidate for Governor. Governor Bates vetoed himself out of office and Governor Douglas seems likely to do the same thing.
Any man who is a close observer at the State House can take a pretty correct view of an impending campaign and can see many things that are not disclosed to the man who runs in the highway. One of the things that insures the election of Colonel Gault next autumn is the apparent certainty that Governor Douglas could not be elected if nominated, and any other Democrat aspiring to the office might aspire and afterward expire.

Mr. Plunkett has left the competition for Lieut. Governor in the hands of Messrs. Draper, Goetting and Hall with adverse considerations in the case of each, although such considerations are less weighty in relation to Goetting than with the others.
Of course it is pretty early to discuss the question of Lieut. Governorship so far as the general public is concerned, but from the candidate's point of view it may be too late a month hence, consequently the element of prevarication may be said not to cut much of a figure. Subsequent developments may remove some of the adverse conditions mentioned in the case of each of these gentlemen, and if all these conditions should flee away we shall see as pretty a fight as is seldom witnessed in Massachusetts.

Edgar J. Bliss.

P. S.—The foregoing is a reasonably true statement of the appearance of things Monday noon. Tuesday noon, many of the matters referred to above were exactly reversed. It now seems probable that the legislature will adjourn Saturday night, as the Cambridge Subway bill was railroaded through the House in President Ban-croft's private car and with Mayor Daly aboard. The other matters which were heretofore supposed to prevent adjournment have been subjected to the Saturday night test. This is a rapid age in which we live, and, compared with the gait which the legislature spent the first four months of its career, the speed of legislation this week is as lubricated lightning. With a body that makes law, it appears to be the fact that in the transaction of business, the legislature knows no law.

It would be useless to foreshadow the probable course of the legislature during the present week, and to point out what may or may not transpire.
It will be considerably safer and perhaps more sensible to wait until next week and comment upon what has taken place.

Norumbega Park

will open on May 30th for its summer season and patrons will find that many improvements have been made for the comfort and enjoyment of visitors. The zoological garden is more extensive than ever before and in addition to all the old favorites there are many new inmates including a three weeks' old baby buffalo. This is one of the finest animal collections in the United States and never fails to attract attention from visitors from other cities. An excellent vaudeville program will be given in the enormous open air theatre beginning at 3:30 and 8 o'clock and the same high class attractions will prevail as during previous seasons. Among the innovations of this season are the daily band concerts in music court from 2:30 until 8 o'clock and after the evening performance in the theatre by Mullaly's Brass Band, which is already a favorite with Norumbega Park patrons. Another new feature is the Ferris Wheel 100 feet high which has been stationed on the highest point in the park.

A track meet took place on Saturday morning, May 20th at the Waban School between the Waban school and the Waltham High school, in which Waban made thirty-seven points and Waltham, twenty-six. The time and winners were as follows:

Hundred yard dash, time 11 minutes. Faulkner, Waban, 1st, Connor, Waban, 2nd, Mosher, Waltham, 3rd. Fifty yard dash, time 1-1/2 minutes. Hayes, Waltham, 1st, Currier, Waban, 2nd, Collins, Waban, 3rd. MINSTRELS

Delight Large Audiences with Music and Fun

At Temple Hall for the Benefit of Working Boys' Home.

Audiences aggregating over 1200 persons enjoyed the Minstrel entertainment given on Thursday and Friday evenings of last week in Temple hall, by the Ladies Aid Society for the benefit of St. John's Industrial School of Newton Highlands. The hall was packed to suffocation Friday evening especially when over 700 were present and even standing room was at a premium.

The chorus was particularly good and the music was most effective under the direction of Mr. T. Clifton Nutting with Mr. M. J. Lally as accompanist. The curtain rose on a plantation scene with Mr. Thos. J. Lyons as Overseer and with the chorus dressed in white costumes, the men with red neckties and the ladies with the most impossible combinations of colors in ribbons and sun-bonnets. Miss Elizabeth I. Hyde was the interactor in the character of the plantation owner giving an entertainment and after the opening chorus which consisted of several good songs and a finely rendered "him" by a male quartet, introduced the end men, Messrs C. J. DeMarque, D. J. O'Connor, Fred Randall and G. P. Flood bones, and F. L. Cunningham, J. P. Ryan, A. H. Hyde and D. F. Riordon, tambos. These gentlemen were dressed alike in black and gilt costumes, two on each side in female attire. The display of hosiery by these bogus women was a bit of stage business which took the crowd.

The first jokes came when the interactor asked each of the end men how they were that morning, and received such replies as those: "Like the front end of a stove—great"; "like the $5 bill given Judge Kennedy yesterday morning—fine"; like a man in a deep well—out of sight." Interpolated between the various songs on the program were many old and some new jokes some of which were very good. Mr. Lyons the undertaker was the butt of two fairly good ones, when it was intimated that he made a mighty good "end" man, and also when he was declared to be a good pugilist, willing to box anyone for $100. Another good undertaker joke was sprung when it was said that while discussing what comes after death, John Flood was seen coming down the aisle. The rarest thing in West Newton was said to be the hair on Jim Condren's head. Bernie Burke and Bob Harrison were said to be a pair of pinchers. One of the younger men in the chorus was called a godfather because he had stood up for a lady in a street car that day. Mr. Joe Murray was claimed to be more polite than another young man because while the latter had given up his seat in the street car to one lady, Joe had given up his seat to two ladies.

But it was in the musical numbers that the entertainment really brought forth enthusiasm, and the applause was certainly deserved. Every number was excellent and while all did well, particular mention should be made of the ballad by Miss Adelaide K. Hyde, the song by Mr. O'Connor and that by Mr. DeMarque. The stage business in the end songs was noteworthy, a razor produced by Mr. Riordon during his song being used effectively, and the burlesque work of Mr. DeMarque keeping the audience in a constant titter. Mr. James H. Rattigan gave a tenor solo which was received with an encore, and Mr. John J. Scheuren in a daisy song, with costume to match, also made a strong hit. Mr. Charles H. Sheridan as the orator of the day, covered himself all over with glory. His speech was both witty and eloquent and for an encore he gave Ingersoll's soliloquy on Napoleon. The closing chorus was a potpourri of popular songs beginning with "My Old Kentucky Home" the solo being sung by Miss Hyde.

The program was as follows:

Opening chorus By the Company End song, "There's a Dark Man Comin' with a bundle George P. Flood Thomas F. Lyons End song, "Dan-Dan-Daniel" Albert H. Hyde

End song, "I'm Lookin' For An Argument." Daniel P. Riordon Ballad, "If You Only Knew" Mary A. Donovan End song, "Pamona" David J. O'Connor

Oration of the Day, Prof. Obadiah Knockem Charles H. Sheridan End song, "Make a Fuss Over Me," Frank L. Cunningham Ballad, "Tell Me With Your Eyes," Adelaide K. Hyde

End song, "My Heart's Desiah," Charles J. DeMarque Tenor solo, "Before the Dawn," James H. Rattigan End song, "You Must Think I'm Santa Claus," Fred Randall

Ballad, "That's What the Daisy Said" John J. Scheuren End song, "Gimme the Leavins" John P. Ryan Closing chorus By the Company
Rev. Father McDonough briefly thanked the audience for its assistance to the home and expressed his appreciation of the work of the Society.

The members of the very efficient chorus were Mrs. James Burns, Mrs. D. F. Riordon and the Misses Mary Buckley, Adelaide Hyde, Molly Morrissey, Elizabeth I. Hyde, Alma Murray, Katherine Croft, Molly Leary, Mary Donovan, Nellie Leary, Catherine Ryan, Julia Enegessa, Minnie Lill, Eleanor Ryan, Katherine Flood, Rose Maguire, Lillian Stuart, Nettie Hurley, Mary Mahoney, Margaret Sullivan, Nora Hurley, Annie Morrissey, Gertrude Morrissey and Messrs Mark Crocker, George King, Justin O'Kane, Charles Cuniff, Daniel Kinsella, Fred O'Sullivan, Edward E. Dugan, Thomas J. Lyons, Oscar Riche, Peter Dugan, George Milnes, Bartholomew Ryan, Wm. Enegessa, Joseph Murray, Dennis Ryan, James Gallagher, Joseph Nolan, Edward Sullivan, Andrew C. Hughes, William O'Donnell, Wm. Wallace, Frank Hurley, John O'Holohan, James Hurley.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

Questions on legal matters will be answered in this column and names of persons sending queries will be considered strictly confidential. Communications should be addressed to Arthur W. Blake-moore, 40 State St., Boston.

Quære: A discussion arose in my store this evening as to whether a police officer could bring a man into court as a witness without written notice. In the case in question a police officer summoned a witness to appear in court the next morning in the name of the Commonwealth, in other words by a verbal summons without any written process whatever. Please let me know whether such a summons is all that is necessary.

H. D. F.
Answer: Under the old common law in England witnesses as we know them were unknown, the jury being chosen from among those who knew the parties and the facts in the case and they at first heard no evidence but decided the case on their own knowledge alone. Later witnesses were admitted to testify but special process for compelling them to testify was provided for only by statute, and it was not until the reign of Queen Elizabeth that a defendant in a criminal case had any means of procuring witnesses in his behalf. Consequently witnesses today can be summoned only in accordance with the express provisions of the statute and any attempt to summon them in any other way must be nugatory.

Our statutes set forth minutely the process of compelling the attendance of witnesses and the duties and rights of police officers and confer no authority on the latter to make a verbal summons. The statutes provide for the issuing of a summons in the ordinary form and stipulate that it shall be served by exhibiting and reading it to the witness, by giving him a copy or by leaving a copy at his place of abode. The summons may be served by a police officer in a criminal case and only when summoned in accordance with the statutes can a court issue a warrant to bring a witness before it and fine him for contempt. Therefore it would seem clear that a police officer has no authority to summon a witness verbally.

Tremont Theatre—Probably no joint work of Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders has met with greater popular favor than "The Prince of Pilsen," a musical comedy which, after attaining phenomenal success in this country, was taken by Mr. Henry W. Savage to London, there to enjoy no less good fortune through a long run at the Shaftsbury Theatre. The story of the opera is ingenious and well worked out, the situations are cleverly devised and effective, the incidents diverting, the lines brightly humorous, the characters well drawn and contrasted, and the music delightfully catchy and memory-haunting—in brief, no light musical play ever more fairly won its success. It will be gratifying, therefore, to hosts of playgoers in Greater Boston to learn that "The Prince of Pilsen" is to return on Monday, May 29th, to the Tremont Theatre, on whose stage it had its original production. From the three companies that have been presenting "The Prince" the past season, Mr. Savage has selected a really "stellar cast" for the coming engagement.

Hollis Street Theatre—The initial presentation of the dramatization by Ira B. Goodrich Jr. of Dwight Tilton's successful novel, "On Satan's Mount," which will be given at the Hollis Street Theatre on Monday evening May 29th, is attracting no little attention. Unusual interest is being manifested in the production of this dramatization of a novel by Boston authors and not a few of the Women's Relief Corps, G. A. R. and Spanish War Veteran Associations have arranged for special nights in honor of the dramatist, Mr. Goodrich, whose father is past Commander of the Kinsley Post 113, as well as for the military interest which is no small feature of the production. The Royal Arcanum has also arranged for a benefit performance during this engagement. There will be a matinee on the holiday, Tuesday, May 30th in addition to the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Boston Theatre—The high tide of popularity has been reached with "The Earl and the Girl" at the Boston Theatre, where that bright breezy, jolly and jingling musical comedy is playing to extraordinary, large patronage nightly, with a prospect of "standing room only" for an indefinite period. To the Shubert Brothers is due the credit for the magnificence of this production and the selection of so excellent a company, but the play itself bears the unmistakable stamp of the English makers of musical comedies. They undoubtedly surpass the Americans in the writing of stage songs however much we are their masters in wit and stage "business." Somehow or other they get an element of daintiness and precision in their musical pieces which is not found in the American product, and which is a marked characteristic of "The Earl and the Girl." The two sensational numbers are "Little Lady in Distress," which causes a ripple in the audience, as a sextette of fair damsels, finding pebbles in their shoes, extract them after removing the daintiest of hosiery and "Spooning" sung by Victor Morely and Georgia Caine, with a big beauty chorus. In this number the "spooners" are seated in a dozen electric-lighted swings lowered from the flies, and each fair lady swings far out over the orchestra. Summed up, "The Earl and the Girl" is a high-class, typically English musical comedy of the lighter and brighter sort, furnishing three solid hours of lively entertainment without a moment's monotony. Missing if you miss the very best of the season's offerings at the Boston Theatre. There are Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Keith's Theatre—Coming to Keith's for the week of May 29 is a list of entertainers the mere announcement of whose names is a sufficient introduction to theatregoers hereabouts. Included in the list are George Evans, blackface humorist, long known by the sobriquet of "Honey Boy," and the author of "Good Old Summer Time"; Callahan and Mack, in their beautiful Irish character playlet, "The Old Neighborhood"; Paul Barnes, monologue and singing comedian; Otto Brothers, German dialect comedians; Louise Bréhane, one of the best soprano vocalists ever heard in the varieties, and Morton, Temple and Morgan, comedy acrobats. Mehan's comedy dogs have been specially engaged for the amusement of the children. Underlined for the week of June 5, are McIntyre and Heath, the inimitable blackface comedians.

Globe Theatre—The best of all the rural plays, "York State Folks," will begin its second week at the Globe on next Monday night, May 29th. Manager Fred Wright has brought this magnificent production here with all of the original elaborate stage settings and the same excellent cast headed by Ray L. Joyce and James Lackaye. The story told in "York State Folks" is a most interesting one and cannot fail to appeal to all classes of theatregoers. It is a pure, sweet, home-like picture of real everyday folks and the late Arthur Sidman knew well the art of weaving an interesting story around characters found in almost any little town. A special scale of prices are now in vogue at the Globe, 50 cents for the best lower floor seat evenings and 25 cents for the best seat at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees. A special matinee will be given on Tuesday, May 30th, Decoration Day.

LETTER TO FRED A. HUBBARD, NEWTON.

Dear Sir: The usual way to buy paint is to take the lowest price by the gallon. Mistake! The buyer loses by it; how much? Depends on the paint; it is so much a gallon, or so much a year. How much a gallon or year, do you think? As much perhaps, as the total price of the paint. It may take twice the number of gallons. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y., owns two houses, both exactly alike. He painted one with Devco and one with another paint. Devco 6 gallons; the other 12.

Go by the name: Devco. There's nothing cheaper. Go by the price; there's nothing dearer, except not painting at all. Poor paint is better than none.

What does it cost not to paint at all? Can't figure it out exactly, say a tenth of the building a year, besides looks.

What is poor paint worth, then? Don't know and don't care; you don't want it. Go by the name.

Yours truly

F. W. Dewe & Co.

PROBATE COURT.

MIDDLESEX, ss. To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of Michael Mullen, late of Newton, in said County deceased, I, the undersigned, Clerk of said Court, do hereby certify that said Court has granted a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Catherine Mullen of Newton in the County of Middlesex, without giving a surety on her bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the thirteenth day of June A.D. 1905, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and five.

Messrs. RAYMOND & Co.,

I have used the "Geneva Lithia Mineral Water" for the past seven years and can say that it has proved a great benefit if not a cure for my terrible suffering from stones in the kidneys and bladder; it is also a great bowel regulator, which I can testify to, in regard to constipation, and also for inflammatory rheumatism.

Yours respectfully,

FRANK F. BOWMAN.

The Mattress of the Present and the Future.

EVERY other mattress in the world is stuffed—hair, cotton or feathers—jammed in at the open end of the tick. That's why lumps and holes soon cause restless nights. Each OSTERMOOR is built not stuffed. Handmade sheets of downy softness, each full size, are carefully built within the tick. It is vermin-proof. An occasional sun bath is all it requires. The tick can be taken off and washed when soiled.
